we practically grow up
in these buildings.
they mean something special and different to each of us.
only we,
in our own private way,
know the secrets
we shared and kept in these halls.
we develop a quiet, reserved fondness for even the most insignificant place or event.
for that reason —
without us,
everything is empty.
without life —
a place is without meaning;
a time is without purpose.
if we are truly aware of what all this means:
these days of sunbeams and raindrops
and snowflakes,
these crowds of faces (with or without names), then we represent the ultimate:
we are the living.
we give spirit
and value to our time.

I'd be willing to bet the craziest next door ever to break the good neighbor policy to the girl who hates sleep and does her level best to destroy mine by surprise visits at all hours and those weird mornings you woke me up at unearthly hours like 6:00AM. Please don't bother any longer.
I hope that this summer is as nice as last summer. You coming around every chance you got. Always remember the night you spent with me and the sweet little lesson it taught you.

the inevitable stalks
silently.
it lurks
around the next corner, or in the purple shadows
of the night.
the inevitable
has visited us.
it has claimed two of us
for its own.
JIM SANNER
and JIM CANE
no longer belong
to us.
but —
with each passing day,
with each time
that the sun rises,
we come closer to them
maybe, when we, too,
belong to the inevitable,
we will be closer to them than ever before because we will have felt their absence.
the void created not only in the halls
at school,
but in our minds and hearts can not be easily explained, yet — it has been a teacher
to us.
we have learned much about mr. inevitable.
his ways are mysterious;
his purpose — seemingly incomprehensible.
he robs us
of what we desire most — life.
death
has taken our friend and put in their place
a compassion
for other people.
we have lost
and, at the same time, gained.
we grow
and learn.
mr. inevitable is a teacher and a taker;
an end
and a beginning.
but in his mystery
he is a peaceful sort.
our friends are at rest.
the sun rises for them
every day,
pink and bright.

Senior Class President Larry Barron introduces Master of Ceremonies Harold Showman.

Smiling demurely, Jeanne pauses at the center of the stage, in her first appearance before the audience.

Contestants in the Maple Princess Contest are Denise Lichty, Jeanne Barbera, Barbara Stutzman, Barbara Beeghly, Rosemary Raszewski, Wanda Sembower and Joni Stumpf.

"Gee, I'm Looking Forward to the Future" is the song that carried Jeanne to queen competition in Meyersdale on February 3rd.

Backed by Craig Hauger on the drums and Tom Singer on the guitar, a lively Jeanne sings of the great new day dawning in the 21st century.

Jeanne listens attentively as Harold Showman asks her one of the three questions that make up the personal interview segment of the contest.

Filled with the added excitement of homecoming events, the Golden Eagles rip through an immense sign as they storm onto the field to meet their traditional rivals, the North Star Cougars.

Attended by Wanda Sembower and Denise Lichty, Barbara Stutzman serves as Prom Queen following her election by the junior class.

At the homecoming football game, the last home game of this year, the band plays the Alma Mater while students and alumni sing.

Barbara Stutzman claims the title of Football and Homecoming Queen. Her court is composed of Junior Susan Shaulis and Sophomore Diane Walker.
Shyly waving a proud hand, Barb passes the crowded rows of bleachers filled with friendly, but not all familiar, faces.

Contemplating Nirvana, Brother Joshua (Scott Boyer) head of the Pig Pen Commune, is the epitome of wisdom to Sister Nora (Wanda Sembower) and Sister Dorothy (Kaylynn Saylor).

Pleased at his apparent success in the music business, Adam (Craig Custer) hugs Candy (Melissa Moyer), unaware that she brings the first in a chain of bad news: the fence broken and the festival goers inside free of charge.

After having promised sharecropper's child Myra Mobile first class accomodations and a limousine, a dilapidated Zippity (Gary Bailey) is forced to hide while Adam, Candy, and the Sheriff (Larry Barron) point out three different routes for her to follow on her wild rampage for "that beast Dewdar!"

"Hey, cows, baby!" shouts Zippity after being told by Adam that the brown things on the ground below their helicopter are actually dairy cows.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrison (Craig Hauger and Amy Lucas) are greeted by Aunt Patience (Mary Dosch) and Aunt Charity (Jane Gindlesperger) as they enter their son's musical escapade, Big Rock at Candy's Mountain.

Milton Shapp campaigns for political honesty. Proving his promise that if he was elected Pennsylvania's next governor Somerset's senior high school band would play at his inauguration, the band traveled to Harrisburg on January 19, 1971.

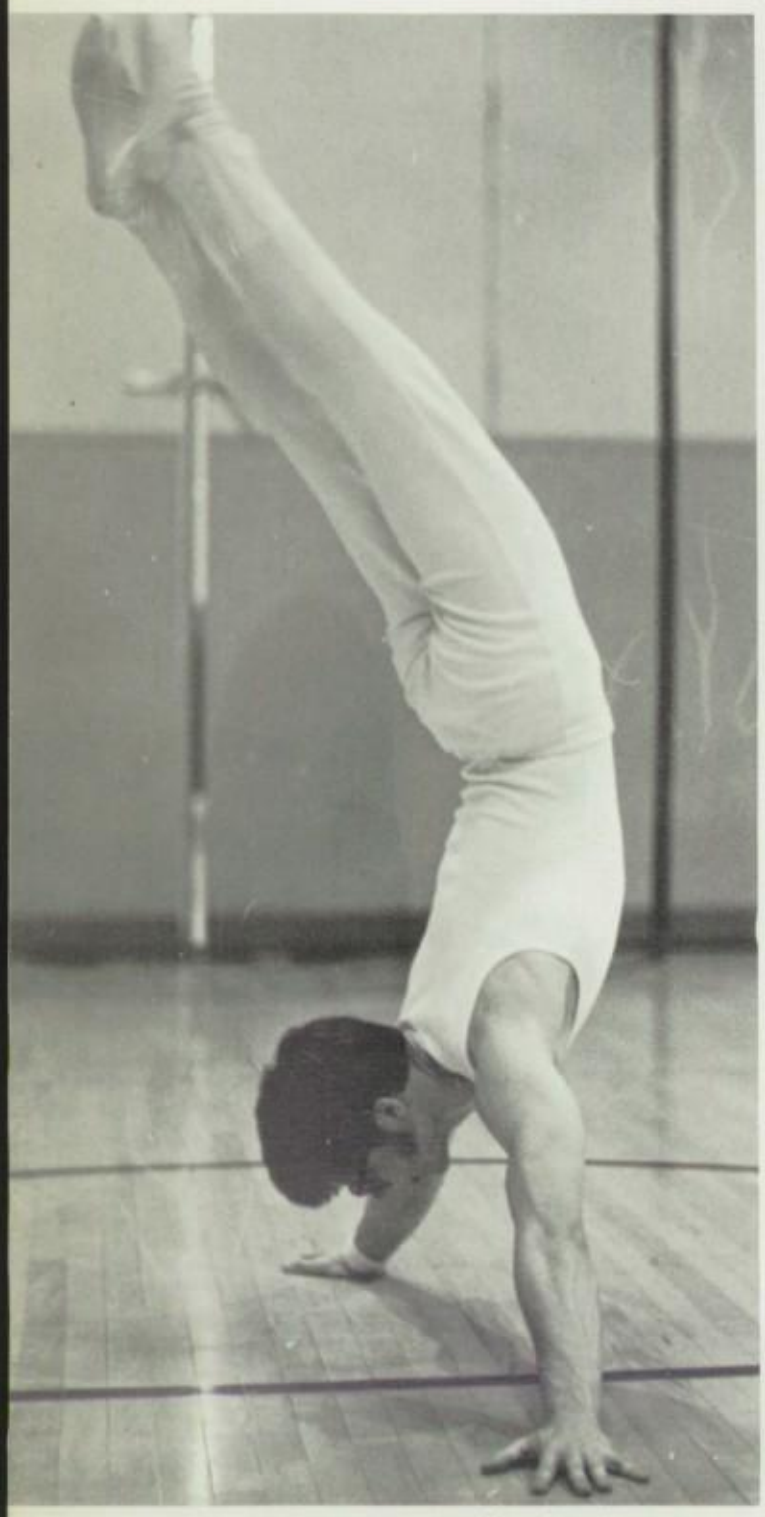
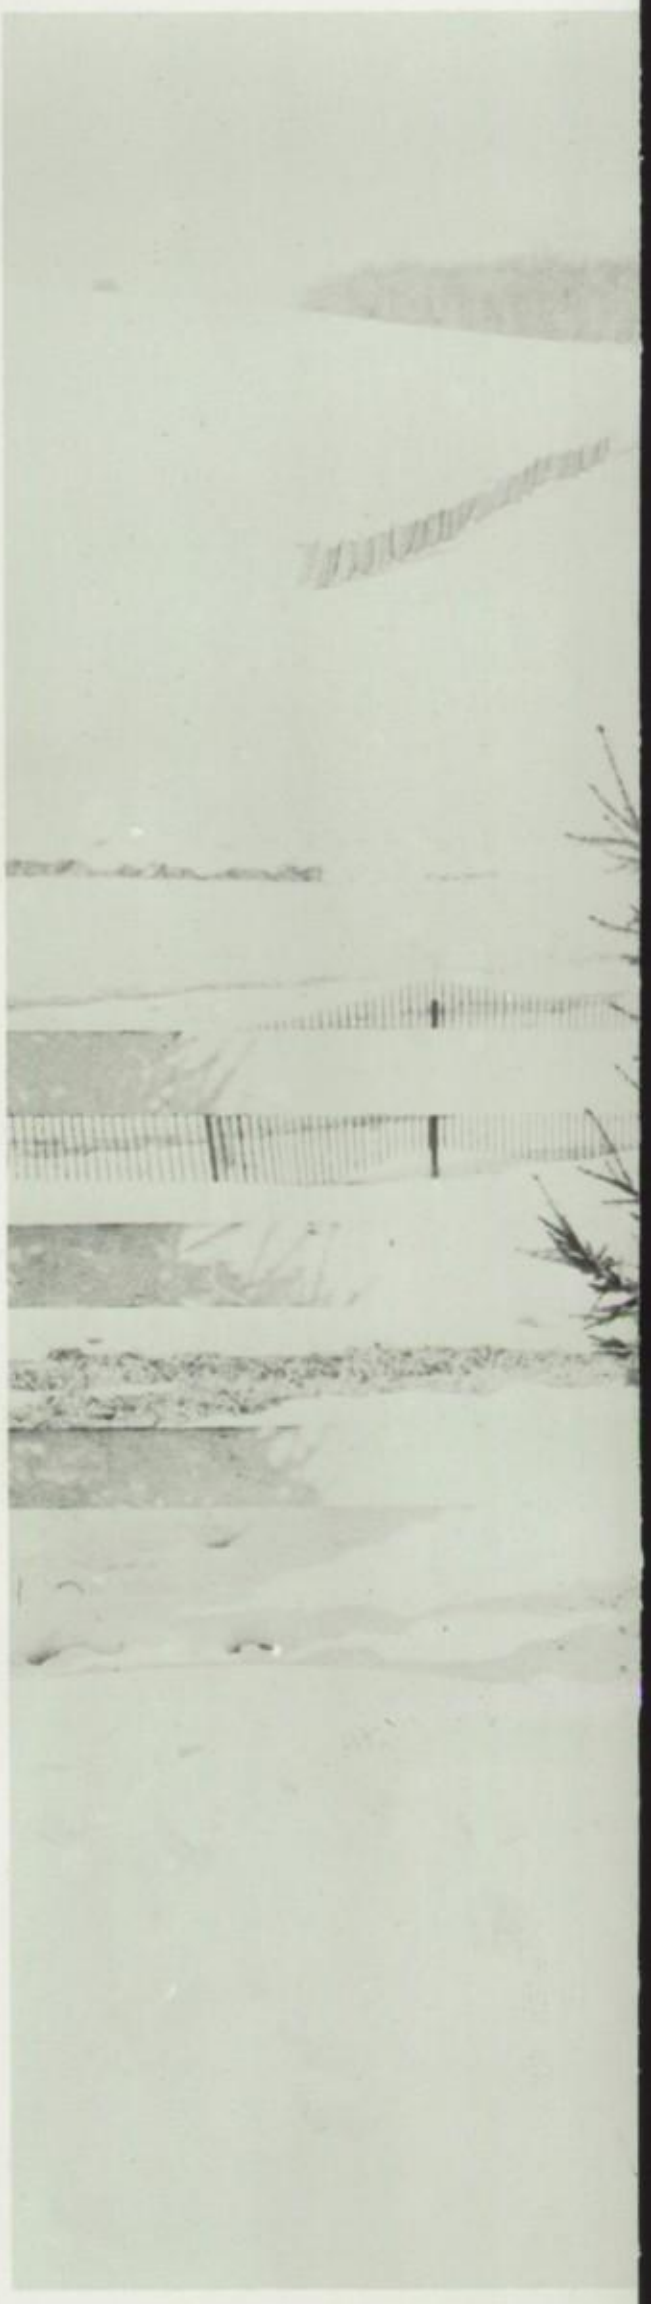
Seniors Choose



Larry practices a spread handstand in preparation for the next gymnastics meet.

Expressing herself to the sound of "Flying Home," Granny Whip dances the charleston.

While performing one of his many duties as Student Council president, Larry maintains order during a meeting.



Whipperman, Barron To Illustrate Ideals

Her classmates elected Sally Ann Whipperman the ideal senior girl. A four-year member of Student Council, Sally served as treasurer during her senior year. She was also president of her homeroom for four years. Sally was chosen Women's Club Representative for the month of January and presented a talk on the Youth of Today. In addition to working on "The Eagle's Echo," she was a member of the Activities Boosters' Club. Sally also participated in Health Careers Club and the chorus.

Chosen to represent the ideal senior boy was Larry Richard Barron. Larry served as president of the Class of '71 for three years and homeroom president for six years. Highlighting his senior year was his position as Student Council president. He was also active in mixed chorus, boys' octet and Roof Garden Folk Singers. Larry lettered in gymnastics for three years. Other activities included National Honor Society, Quill and Scroll, Hi-Y and business manager of "The Eagle's Echo." Larry also served as Rotarian for October.

Sally pauses for a moment and allows her mind to wander while enjoying one of her favorite pastimes.

Leading the Senior class are Vice President Sam Crouse, Treasurer Jules Yancey, Secretary Mark Martz, President Larry Barron, and Sponsor Mr. Urbain.

A smile of satisfaction appears on Susan Barron's face as she is measured for her graduation cap.

Scott Boyer counts the days left in the school year as he looks forward to attaining the status of graduate.

Seniors Reflect Comedy And Gravity Of School

Boredom, disinterest, laughter, a few of the expressions on senior faces in the library are shown by Sally Walker, Karen Rhoads, Linda Mapes and Cathy Dively.

They came as individuals searching for the answers. Somewhere during the time of learning, experience and growth, they welded themselves into the Class of '71.

The Magic Touch, their freshman class play, was their first undertaking. Then came their Soph-Senior dance Once Upon a Time and their Junior Prom Camelot, times for effort and pride.

Seniors topped all previous school magazine sales records when they met and surpassed their goal with a total of $21,964.17.

Music and laughter vibrated through the auditorium as the senior class play, Big Rock at Candy's Mountain unfolded.

After three TV appearances Mary Dosch, Ann Brubaker, George Kaufman and Robert Moyer retired from the Johnstown Scholastic Quiz as undefeated champions.

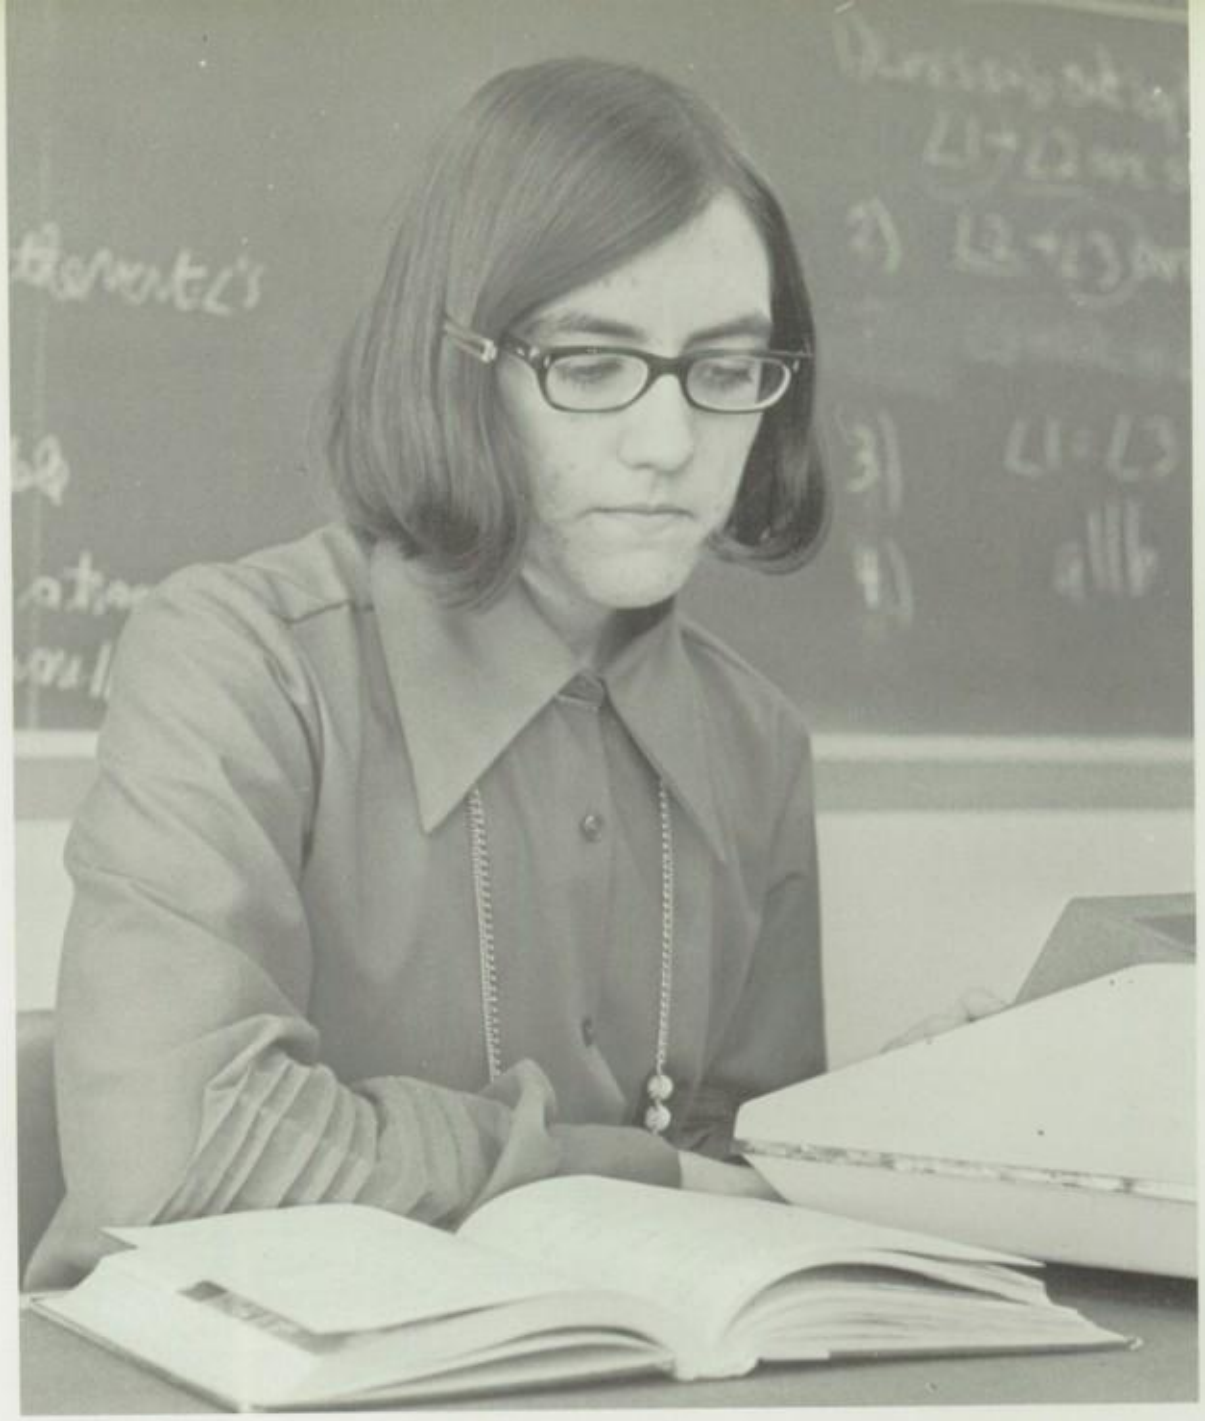
Jim Troll and Ann Brubaker were National Merit commended students.

Representing class and school was Somerset's Maple Princess Jeanne Barbera.

Named a Tribune-Democrat football scholarship winner, Sam Crouse highlighted the class's athletic prowess, while Dean Hottle earned All-County Honorable mention.

Members of the Class of '71 stood united for the last time at Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises. Then, it was a time for each person to resume his own journey into tomorrow.

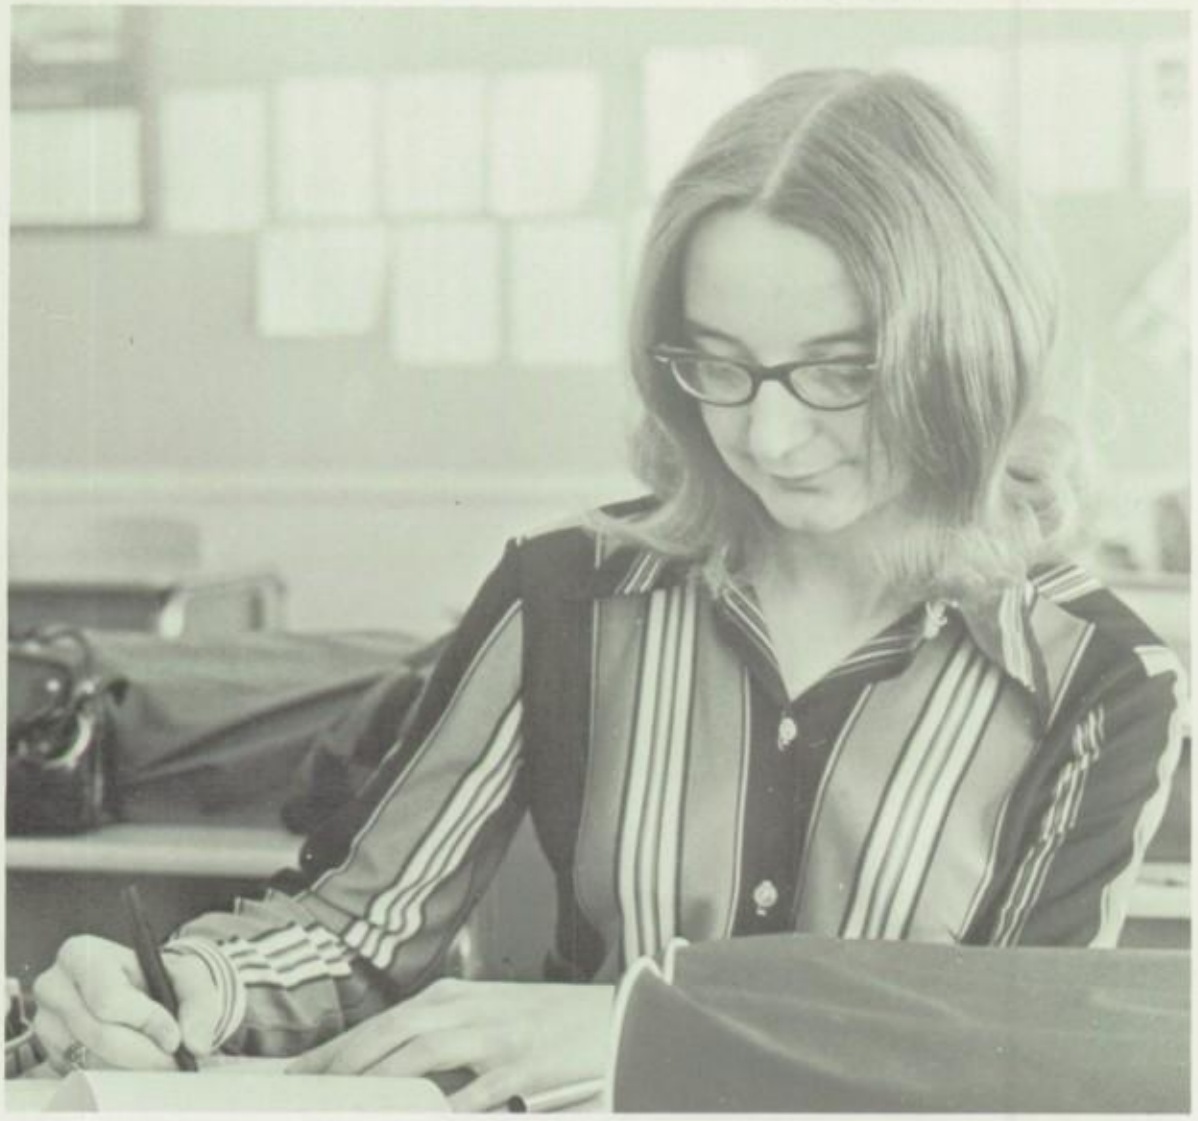
Senior guys in the cafeteria illustrate an everyday experience, enjoying themselves and releasing school tensions.



On the basis of class standing at the end of the first semester, Valedictorian Ann Brubaker is the outstanding academic senior.

Craig Murray, outstanding industrial vocational senior, works at his shop project.

Seniors Gain Prestige By Leading Departments



Selected as the outstanding business education senior is Pamela Maurer.

Leading the class of 1971, Ann Elizabeth Brubaker was selected as the outstanding academic senior. She was a member of National Honor Society, the Johnstown Scholastic Quiz team and the Science Seminar. Academic editor of the yearbook, she was also a National Merit Commended student. She plans to attend Wilson College after graduation.

At the end of the first semester, Pamela Kay Maurer was named the outstanding business education senior for 1971. She was a member of FBLA and the senior BPW girl for March. She also received the Shorthand I award in her junior year. Her plans for the future include a job.

Chosen as the outstanding home economics senior was Barbara Niehenke. Among her many interests she enjoys swimming, sewing, ice skating and chess. She also water skies and loves to tell jokes. During the past year she served as treasurer of FHA. Barbara plans to get a job after graduation.

Outstanding industrial vocational senior for 1971 was Craig Allan Murray. He was chosen for his exceptional work in the various shops and served as shop club president for 1970-71. Craig's hobbies include hunting and fishing. After graduation he plans to work at the Somerset Tool and Die Company as an apprentice.

The leading vocational home economics senior for 1971 is Barbara Niehenke.

Elected Senior Boys Address Local Service Clubs

Senior Rotarians, Lions and Jaycees were chosen as boys of the month by their classmates, while Senior Kiwanians were nominated and elected by members of the Key Club.

One boy was chosen for each club each month and that boy attended the meetings of that club for a month. At the end of his visit, the representative gave a short speech to the club on a subject of his choice.

This honor proved to be beneficial to the boys as well as to the members of the community service clubs. The seniors became acquainted with adult thinking and with the service clubs' plans and purposes, while leading members of the community became acquainted with the ideas of responsible youths.

Kepresentative to Jaycees' club meetings are (standing) Samuel Crouse, Clarence Trout, Mickey Talley, Mark Martz, Robert Moyer, Rodney Hardesty, (seated) Russell Miller, Timothy Resh and Jules Yancey.

Selected as Senior Rotarians are (standing) Barrett Devlin, Anthony Pacifico, Richard Smith, Alan Foster, Larry Barron, Michael Cascio, (seated) Scott Boyer, Craig Hauger and Dean Hottle.

Senior Kiwanians are (standing) Douglas Weimer, David Day, (seated) Jeffrey Cook, Jeffrey Burkett and Robert Wolk.

Women's Organizations Welcome Girls At Meetings

Character, leadership, scholarship and service were the characteristics by which many senior girls were chosen to be representatives to the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Soroptimist Club and the Women's Club. All the representatives to these different service clubs were chosen by members of the faculty. Each month a girl was privileged to attend the evening meeting of the particular club which she had been selected to visit. At this meeting the representative was asked to give a short talk on a subject of her own choice. By participating in the activities of these clubs, the girls gained valuable experience. The visits also served as an appropriate way for them to explain many facets of school life.

Representatives to the Women's Club are (clockwise) Jacqueline Lease, Cathy Dively, Sharon Heist, Rebecca Brallier, Sally Whipperman, Deborah Igou, Ann Brubaker and Rosemary Raszewski.

Comic Production Depicts Ill-Fated Rock Festival

During final curtain calls, when the entire cast is packed onto the stage, something intangible unites them, silently existing for only a few minutes, and then exploding into particles to be gathered and recollected by each individual actor.

When the curtain closes for the last time on the senior class play cast, emotions are strong. Amy McClintock sheds uncontrollable tears on the shoulder of Jackie Lease.

Drenched in mud from the vicious "thunderstorm" that hit Candy's Mountain, Pat Barndt enters the scene as sharecropper's child Myra Mobile.

After dress rehearsal for the senior class play, Denise Lichty and Mrs. Cindric fit Mrs. Antram into a Mexican sombrero while Craig Custer cheers.

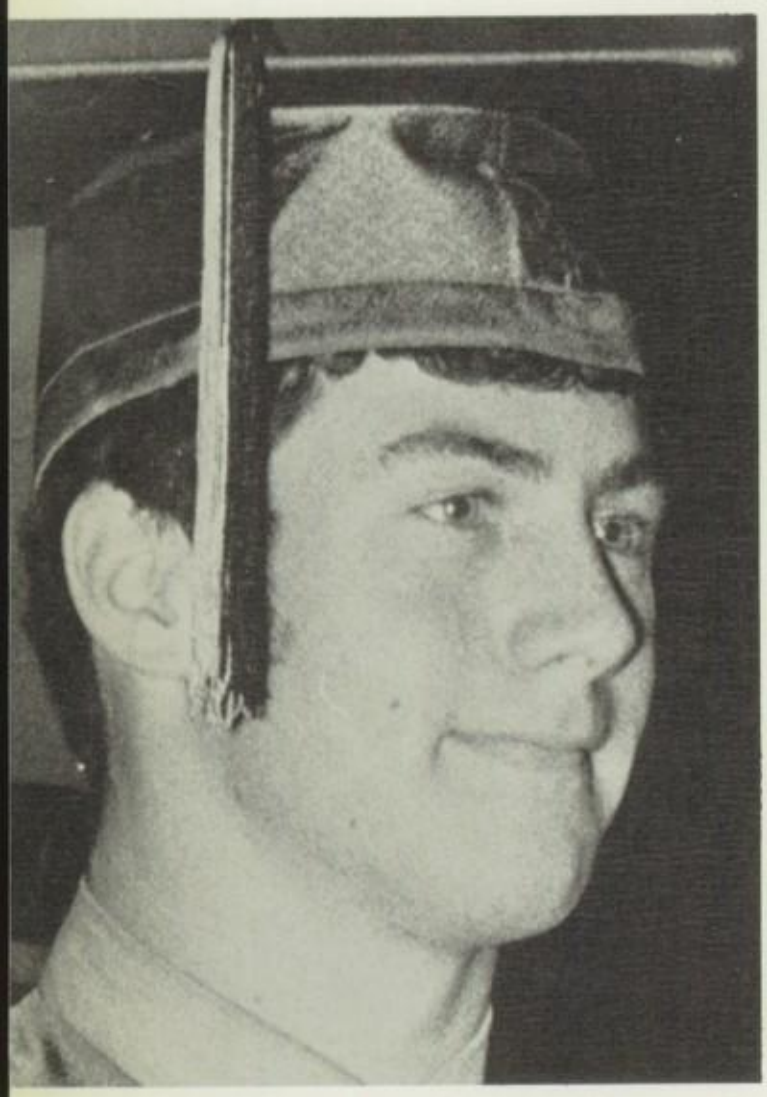
Seniors View Governmental Functions During Tour

A time for us has ended. Tangible objects such as books, papers and tests are replaced by intangible possibilities. A new time for us has begun.



Victories, achievements and attained goals are of importance to seniors. Susie Miller, Debi Pensiero and Susie Barron agree that the right to wear pantsuits granted on Monday, February 1, 1971, is one of the milestones.

President Judge Charles Coffroth briefs seniors on courtroom procedure during the annual Somerset County Court House tour.

Senior girls strike a blow for women's lib by emerging victorious from the annual volleyball tournament while senior boys went down to defeat in their match.

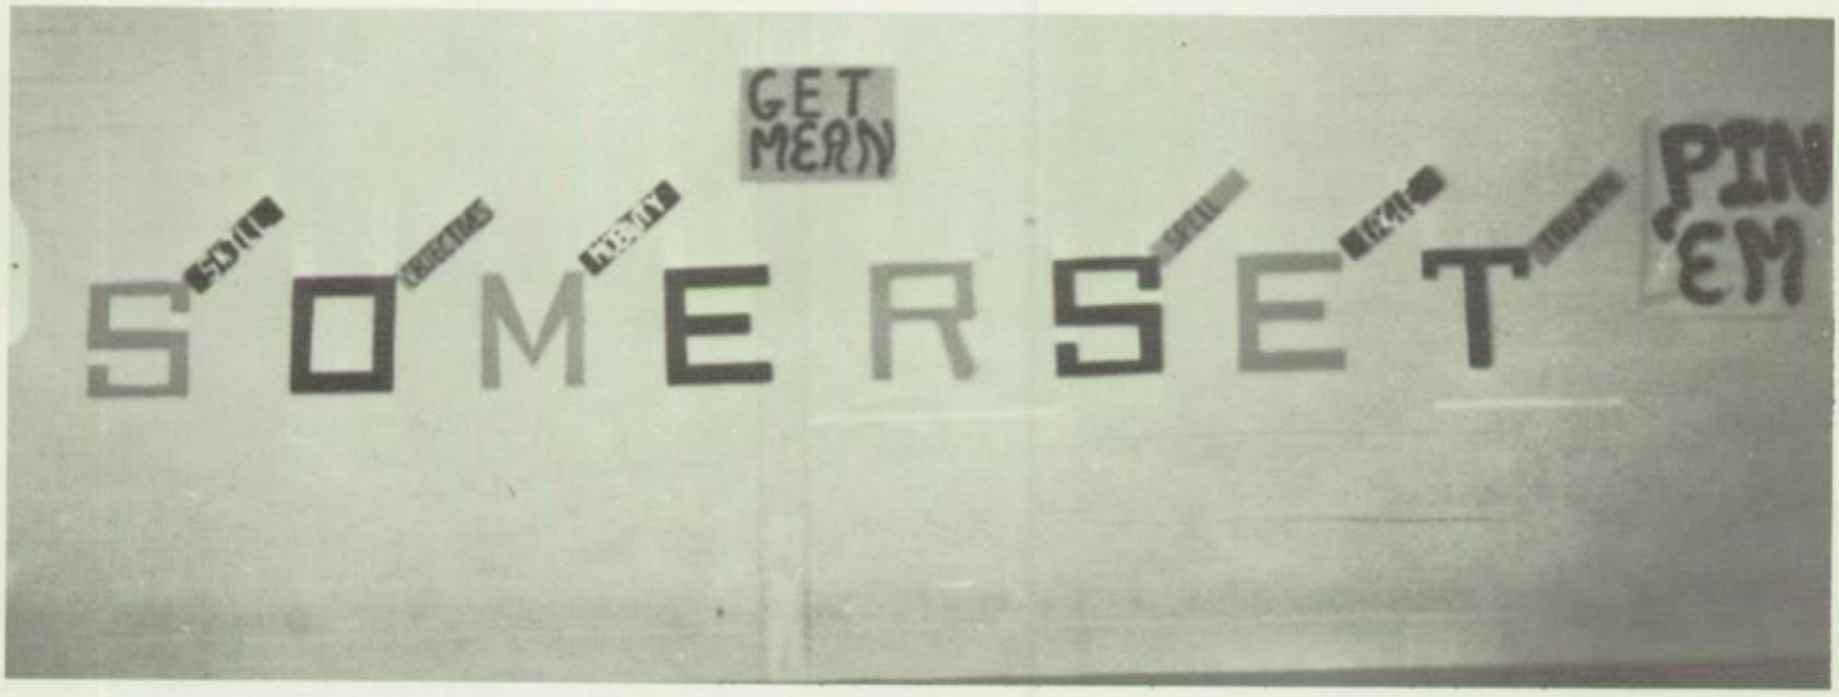
Senior spirit is expressed in many different ways. Debbie Pile, Diane Gerhardt and Debbie Phillips fly their colors to show their spirit.

Filled for assemblies, contests and class activities, seat after seat, row after row is unnoticed, unimportant and at last understood.

New modes of fashion warrant new styles in all areas. Impressions last forever, but are at their peak when first witnessed, Wanda Sembower realizes as she sees her new band uniform.

Old replaced by new . . . motives, philosophies; uniformities like old band uniforms gathered, stored and remembered.

Senior Memories Remain In A Vacant Building



Remnants of pep rallies, basketball games and wrestling matches hang deserted by crowds and time.

A world of crowds, noise, enthusiasm and unity ends with the cheerleading contest. Joni Stumpf and Amy McClintock turn in their megaphones and bedraggled pom poms, realizing they will never again perform as Somerset High cheerleaders.

Muffled laughs and mischievous giggles are suppressed between the covers of these books, making library shelves spaces for both facts and teenage fantasies.

The Junior Prom theme takes a lot of thought, Cindy Custer, Jon Jacobs, Sally Miller and Susan Spangler discover at one of the morning planning sessions.

Elected by her teachers, Representative Kathy Plaso is looking forward to a week at Keystone Girls' State at Shippensburg State College in June, 1971.

Ready to lead the Class of '72 through a challenging year are Sponsor Chester Pfeffer, President Joseph Barbera, Secretary Susan Shaulis, Treasurer Patricia Ludy and Vice-President Christopher Hay.

we are here to be taught.
professors with heavy texts and cold hard stares melt into friendly compassionate people eager to be involved in our situation
as the year goes on.
all too often,
we doubt and mistrust;
we view tests
as bitter enemies and teachers
as cruel adversaries of everything we strive for.
yet — if we let them,
teachers become amazingly human,
with voiced laughter
and recognizable grins.
they doff starched collars and formalities to become one with us.
we can work as a team.
ACADEMICS in school
is a time for teamwork and a time to build individuals with the tools of those more experienced at living.

School Directors Endorse Up-Dated Dress Code

The Somerset Area Board of School Directors played an important role in maintaining the school system. Members of the board represented all the citizens of Somerset Area and worked along with them. The administration carried out the guidelines and policies set by the board.

The 1970 Senior High Student Council revised the existing school dress code. This revision was reviewed and approved by the board of school directors.

The board also allocated ten thousand dollars to the senior band to aid them in the purchase of new uniforms.

Completed this past summer was the sidewalk along South Franklin Avenue for which the board had previously approved plans.

The school board, along with other local boards, became acquainted with a new state-mandated scheme of organization. Plans were made for participation in intermediate unit #8, comprising Somerset, Bedford, Blair and Cambria counties starting on July 1, 1971.

The duties of Somerset Area's administrators were varied. They included coordinating the activities of the different schools, supervising the faculty's work, disciplining students when necessary, up-dating the records of all school personnel and fulfilling the plans drafted by the school board.

Superintendent Howard Trexel was the link between the board of school directors and the faculty.

Secretaries File, Distribute Data

In the performance of their duties, the office secretaries contributed much to school life at the junior and senior high buildings. In addition to their routine work, they carried out various helpful services, necessary to both teachers and students.

Processing work permits, corresponding with neighboring schools, reading announcements, typing the daily bulletin and issuing admits to tardy students, along with keeping records and operating office machines composed their daily schedule of work. Other important duties included securing teachers' evaluations and preparing transcripts for college-bound students. They recorded grades and test scores on permanent records, assisted in computing class ranks for juniors and seniors and aided with students' schedule changes and the scheduling of new students.

MRS. EMMA HAY, Seventh-Eighth Grade Guidance Counselor

Important work of the guidance department was to keep senior high students informed of after-graduation opportunities, including four-year colleges, technical schools, nurses' training, occupations and military service.

The seventh and eighth grade counselor was Mrs. Emma Hay. Mr. Richard Colliver, counselor for grades nine and ten, traveled between the two schools. At the senior high, Mrs. Pauline Glessner assisted juniors and seniors. She informed students of Scholastic Aptitude Test dates and sent transcripts to colleges.

Mrs. Mary Dean Manges, school psychologist and Home-school visitor, helped students consider and solve school related problems.

A new vocational counseling service headed by Mrs. Phyllis Miller helped non-college students choose careers.

Junior High Student Council

MRS. SHIRLEY KEAFER
School Nurse, Health Careers Club

Mr. Thomas Brown was the audio-visual aids director for the schools in the Somerset Area. He supplied classrooms with filmstrips, projectors, record players and tape recorders. Coordinating bus schedules was a duty he performed as the director of transportation for the Somerset Area Schools.

Employed by the Pennsylvania Department of Health, Mrs. Shirley Keafer was the school nurse for the junior high and the senior high. Her duties included giving annual hearing and vision tests to each student and measuring height and weight. She completed and filed medical records for each student. Mrs. Keafer was on the job to help students if they became ill during the day or were injured in gym class. Mrs. Keafer also advised the Health Careers Club and aided the school physicians with dental and physical examinations and tuberculin tests.

Senior High teacher aides were Mrs. Ruby Rock and Mrs. Phyllis Miller. Mrs. Dorothy Woodrow and Mrs. Miriam Weicht were the junior high teacher aides. Prior to this year the jobs of the teacher aides were assisting teachers with typing, filing records and running off test papers. This year the duties of the teacher aides were greatly extended by the Federal government so that their activities included closer work with students. Devoting much of her time to students not planning to attend college, Mrs. Miller presented ideas to them about future career opportunities.

Dieticians Prepare Daily Meals, Special Banquets

MRS. MARY SILVIS, MRS. GRACE CAREY, MRS. EMMA REIMAN
Dieticians

Mrs. Grace Carey, Mrs. Mary Silvis and Mrs. Emma Reimen were the dieticians responsible for planning and supervising the daily meals prepared and served by the kitchen staffs in the Somerset Area Schools. Head dietician Mrs. Carey was the coordinator of the school lunch program in six different schools. Before all away games the senior high kitchen staff prepared evening meals for the football team, wrestling squad and basketball team. The Parents' Night football banquet, the junior high honor roll banquet and the senior magazine sales banquet were special dinners prepared by our dieticians.

The custodians of the junior high and the senior high were responsible for providing students and teachers with clean and well-maintained schools. Some of the custodians' varied jobs included mowing lawns, scrubbing and sweeping floors, painting, removing snow from the walks and parking lot and keeping the temperature of the buildings comfortable. They were also available for emergencies such as jammed lockers, broken windows and lost books. Custodians helped the teachers by delivering packages containing new books, supplies and laboratory equipment. They were on duty every school day and during all extra-curricular activities.

Mrs. Keafer's daily schedule is filled with complaints of headaches and other assorted catastrophes.

Mr. William Tokar performs one of his regular duties, mowing the lawn in front of the school.

Anatomy Students Count Joints, Nerves, Muscles

General science students covered the study of life from the cell to advanced life forms in our environment. They experimented with simple machines, heat, light, gases, liquids and solids.

Academic sophomores in laboratory biology studied and experimented with genetics, the growth of bacteria and the composition of plant life. Students in general biology discussed the fundamental concepts of these fields.

Learning how to manipulate the slide rule and performing laboratory experiments with different elements and compounds occupied chemistry students. They studied the gas laws as well as fundamental procedures in programming the computer.

In the physics department academic students worked with the laws of heat, light, mechanics, magnetism and electricity. Physics provided opportunities to use the slide rule and the computer in problem solving.

Students interested in a medical career elected anatomy. They studied the physiology of the human body in detail.

After constructing continuity checkers as part of their study of electronics, advanced science students worked on individual research projects.

Explaining the biology department's course of study to his student teacher, Mr. Timothy Guyer, is Mr. Rhodes.

Mr. Gould watches Noel Snyder operate the polarograph as Frank Pucci awaits his turn.

Advanced Math Students Tackle Analytic Geometry

In algebra statement problems are often difficult to solve, so Kim Wilson and Gary Williams give their assignment careful attention.

Junior high modern math students studied number systems, geometric constructions and graphs.

Algebra presented linear and quadratic equations, factoring and negative numbers.

Trigonometry dealt with relationships of the parts of a triangle.

In modern geometry, points, lines, planes and deductive proofs were discussed.

Senior high students could elect general math as a review of their junior high work.

Business math enabled business students to improve their speed and accuracy in solving problems.

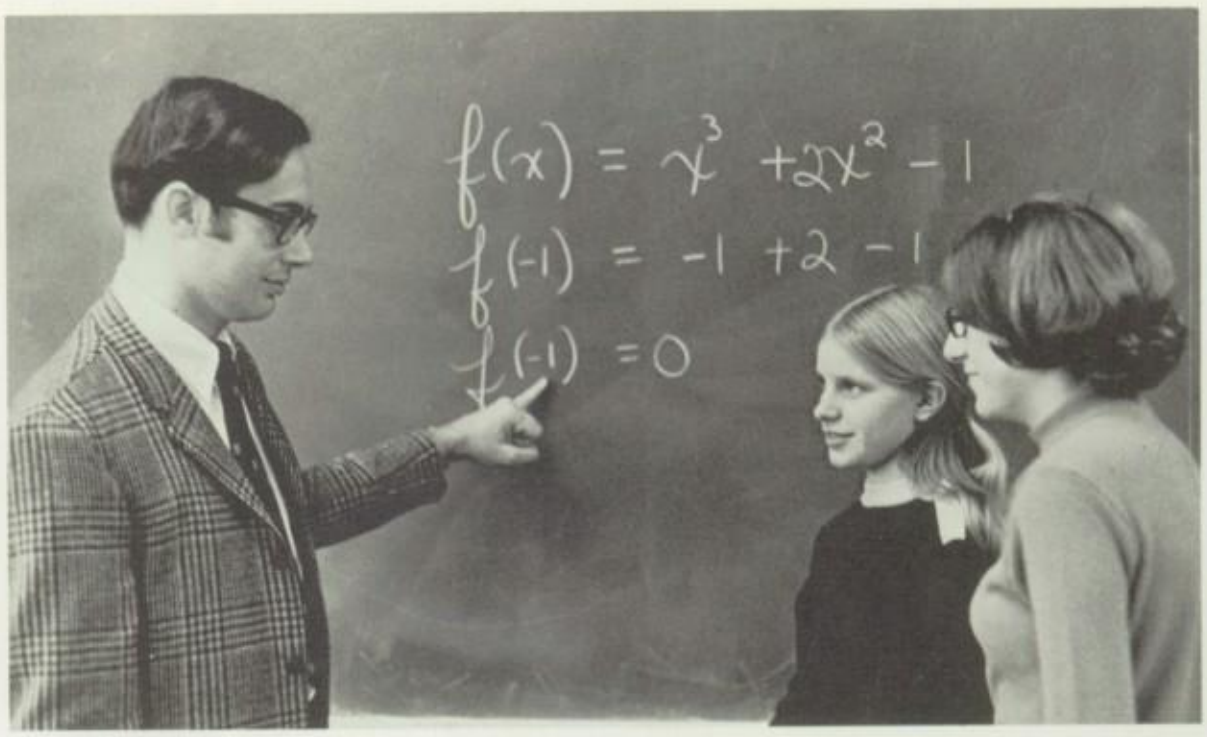
Future nurses elected nurses' math, which gave them experience with the metric system and problem solution.

Academic seniors who had maintained a B average in all previous math courses were eligible to elect advanced math. There they prepared for higher math courses offered by colleges.

Teletype equipment connected Somerset with a computer in Altoona, aiding students in solving difficult problems.

MRS. DOROTHY HINE
General Math

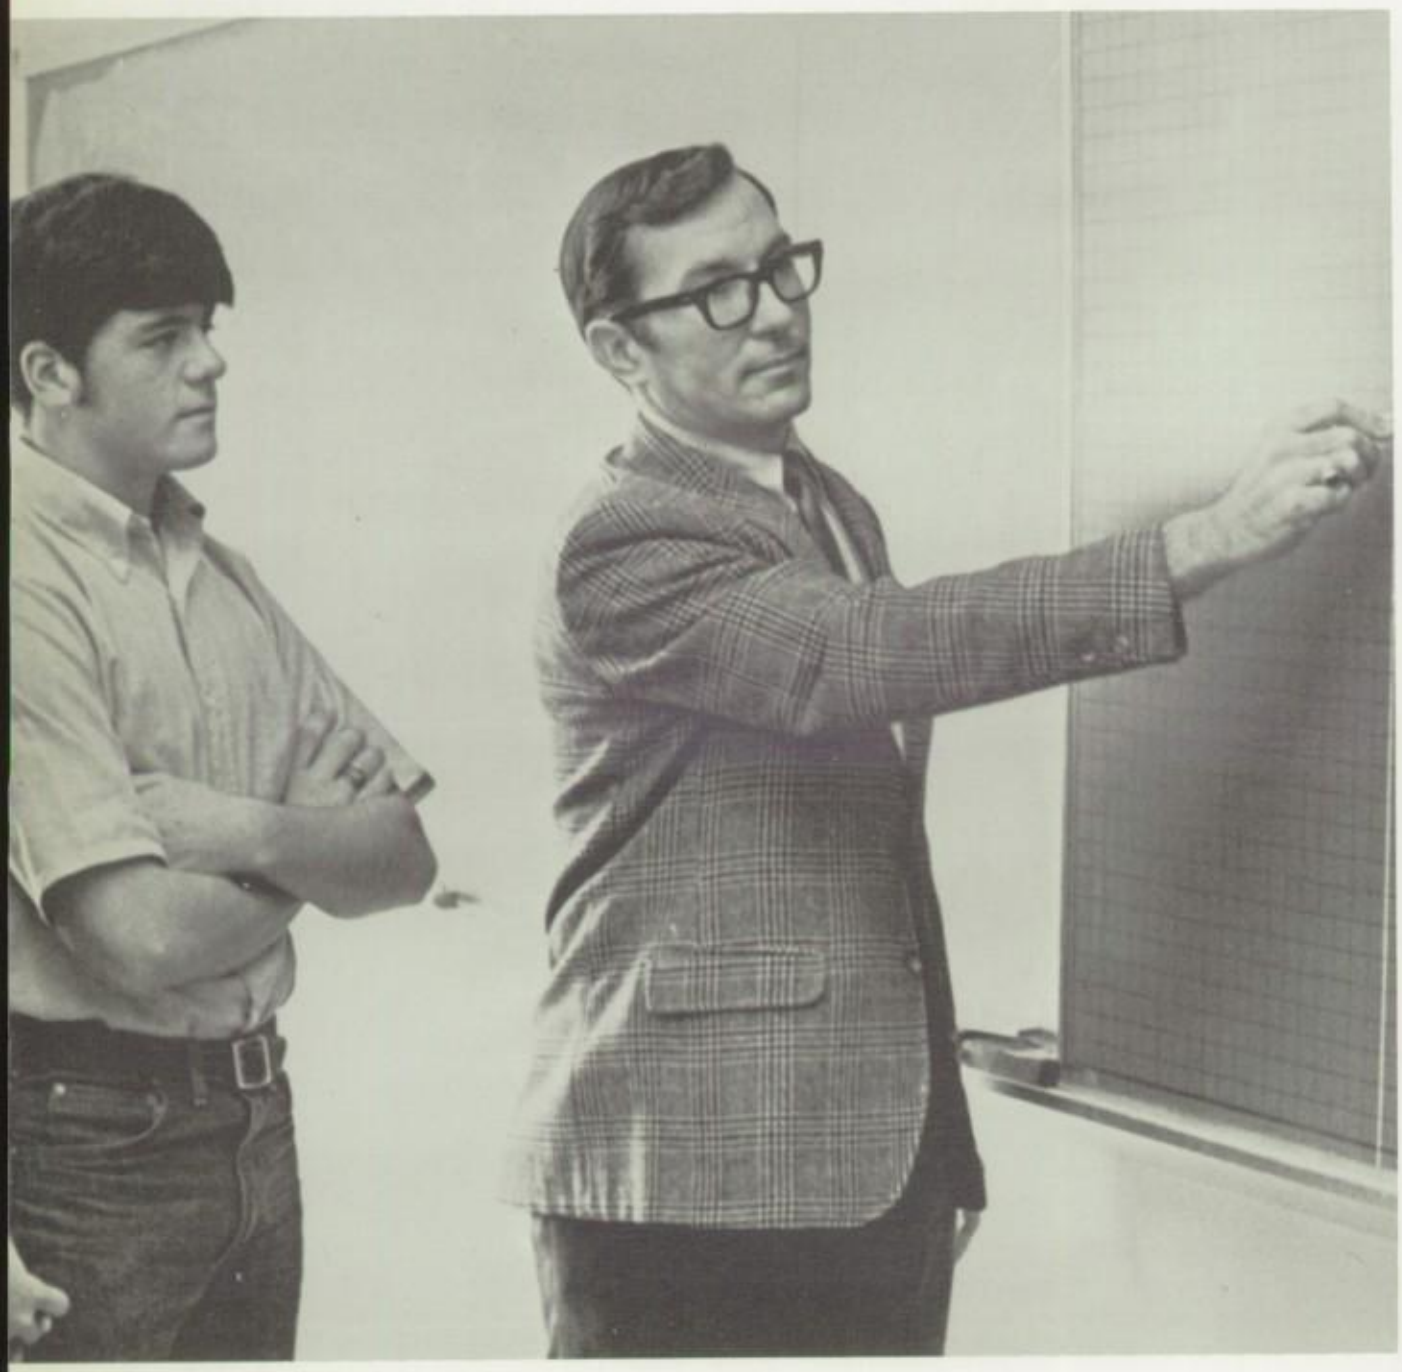
George Berkey and Patti Barndt go to the top as they ask Mr. Kuhlman for assistance with their mathematical induction problem.



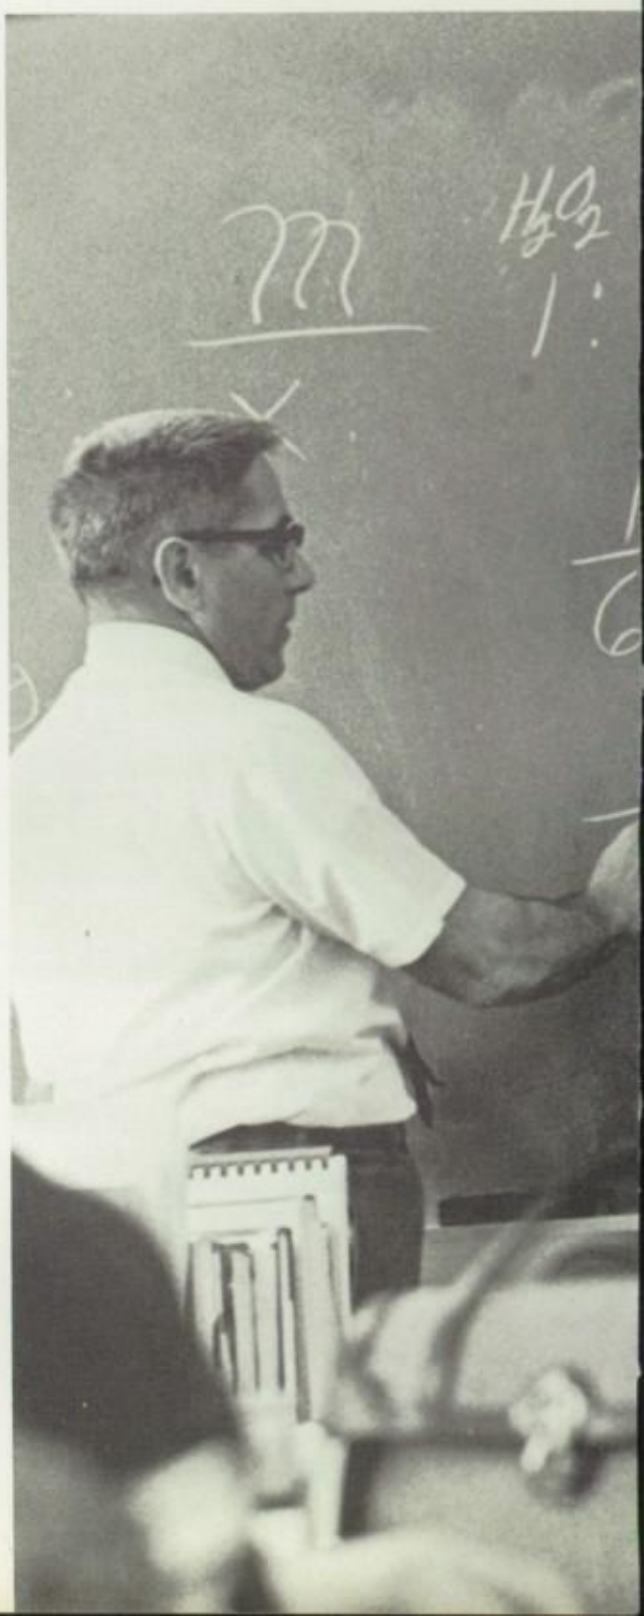
Mr. Bruno explains to Laura Potter and JoAnn Stahl the procedure for finding the function of x in an algebraic equation.

Freshmen Journey Into Fields Of Modern Math

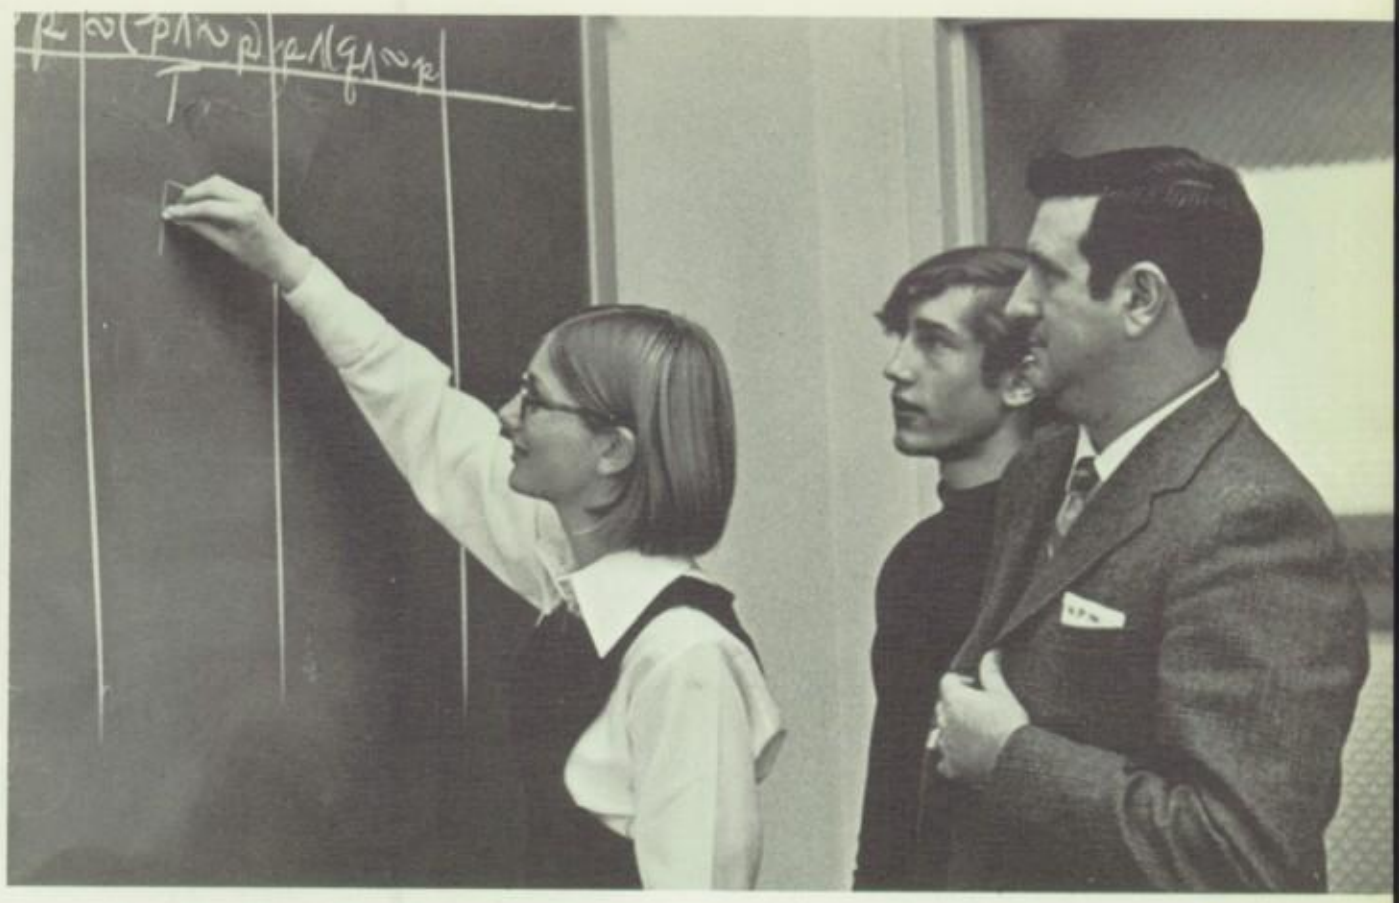
The sine curve looks much simpler to Pat Morin when Mr. Kuhlman sketches one in trig class.



Nurses' math presents problems concerning solutions, as Mr. Morocco demonstrates.



Business math student Pamela Zerfoss finds that long division is especially hard for short girls.



In modern geometry Denise Barndt proves statements true or false while Mr. Urbain and Eric Beech stand by to check her accuracy.

Mr. Kuhlman answers Mike Irwin's question as he explains a trigonometry test problem.

Mark Pollock supplements his knowledge of solid figures as Mrs. Scheidinger explains the properties of a cube.

History Program Diversifies Into Many Spheres

Seventh grade students studied man from pre-historic times through the age of exploration in World Cultures I. In American Culture I, eighth grade students observed America's history from its discovery to the pre-Civil war period. In civics freshmen covered U. S. government in addition to world affairs and current events.

World Cultures II helped sophomores contrast the cultures of many countries of the world. Juniors received a detailed account of America from the old world to today's economic, political and social problems in American Culture II. In problems of democracy and economics seniors studied political parties, the organization of our democratic system as compared to other countries and our economic system.

Seventh and eighth grade students discussed characteristics of different countries in geography classes. In the senior high, world geography was offered as a full-year elective consisting of an in-depth study of the world and its people.

Mr. Bessler discusses with Joe Barbera and Debbie Rhoads the problems facing our country at the start of the John Quincy Adams administration.

Amused world cultures students appreciate one of Mr. Egolf's many quips.

Mr. Clay emphasizes a point about the annual rainfall of England.

Aiding Mrs. Findley in her explanation of the state election is her bulletin board display of the candidates.

Mr. Gourley shows Cynthia Kidd and Bob McNelly the topography of Somerset County, which makes it the Ski Capital of Pennsylvania.

POD Offers Forum On Government, Economics

Mr. Egolf prepares to show a film to stimulate a world cultures class discussion.

Mike Cascio explains the system of checks and balances to his POD class.

Junior High Program Combines

MR. DAVID TRENT
English III, English Literature

English students in grades seven and eight studied grammar, poetry, public speaking and literary forms, as well as written and oral reporting.

Seventh and eighth grade reading classes emphasized and improved skills including writing and reading appreciation. Ninth grade reading students studied phonetics, poetry and plays, while participating in reading laboratory work.

This year spelling was integrated into all of the English-related subjects on the junior high level, and spelling as a separate course was discontinued. The junior high library circulated paperback books for the first time.

Freshman and sophomore English students studied a combination of literature and grammar.

Academic juniors selected either newspaper journalism or academic English. Here they learned new concepts in writing and speech. They also studied plays, short stories, biographies, novels and poetry in a separate American literature course.

Senior academic students studied linguistics, vocabulary, logic and structure of the English language. Journalism classes published the school newspaper, "The Eagle's Echo" and the yearbook, the Eaglet. In literature classes seniors explored English and World literature.

Senior High Spanish Students Voyage To Spain

Seventh and eighth grade students pursued Spanish in a nine-week block. They studied the customs and grammar used by the people of Spanish-speaking nations.

Beginning with their freshman year, academic students could elect Spanish, French or German. These languages were offered to help students broaden their knowledge of foreign peoples.

In their language classes students studied grammar extensively and widened their vocabularies. They made use of oral and written drills. Filmstrips, slides, records and pictures added depth to the study of culture and customs. Students also learned folk songs and poems in the language they studied.

A summer field trip to Spain allowed senior high Spanish students to put their school language experiences to use.

Sophomores Crystal Johnson, Valerie Marker and Nancy Powell browse through books about Spanish culture to get ideas for their bulletin board.

Shorthand I and II

Pat Kuna studies a mortgage contract as part of her business law course.

Sandra Dunmyer observes Mr. Cindric's technique on the electronic calculator as he helps her with a bookkeeping problem.

Aim To Develop Proficiency, Speed And Accuracy

Hoping for a good score, Connie Arnold waits for Mrs. Miller to finish checking her general business test.

Three areas of concentration offered by the commercial department were clerical, bookkeeping and secretarial.

General business, a requirement for all commercial sophomores, stressed the essentials of banking, installment buying, personal budgeting and bookkeeping. Juniors studying business math reviewed fundamentals. In Typing I, students were introduced to basic techniques. Advanced skills were presented in Typing II. Vocabulary, correct grammar, punctuation and proper methods of correspondence were important in Business English.

Office practice dealt with filing, data processing and taking dictation.

Business law, consumer education, and business principles and management were electives offered to commercial students. Academic students could elect personal typing, notehand, business law, Shorthand I or Bookkeeping I.

Seniors participated in two weeks of work experience, where they held positions at local businesses and offices.

The Eaglet business staff consisted of senior sales students. Their duties included leading the senior magazine sale, soliciting patrons and taking yearbook orders.

New equipment acquired by the department included three electronic calculators, four Norelco transcribers and an additional IBM electric typewriter.

School Farm Becomes Laboratory

MR. CLARENCE WALTERMIRE
Junior High Metal Shop

Junior high students studied mechanical drawing in nine-week blocks. They learned lettering, multi-view projection and how to use drafting instructions.

In the wood and metal shops, junior high boys were introduced to shop machines and constructed useful articles such as cookie cutters, birdhouses and magazine racks. Girls learned the fundamentals of sewing and meal planning in junior high home economics.

Freshmen could elect vocational home economics or vocational agriculture instead of the academic or general program. These courses continued in the senior high. Home economics taught more advanced cooking and sewing as well as interior decorating and child care. Agriculture students studied good farming techniques while gaining practical experience on the school farm.

Senior boys were offered a special home economics course, where they sewed their own aprons, then prepared tasty delicacies.

Girls interested in nursing could elect nutrition. Senior machine shop students worked on their special project, a die-cast mold. Included in senior high industrial offerings was an elective course in small gasoline engines.

Automotive mechanics stressed theory and practice in automotive maintenance and repair.

Students Improve By Job-Training

In the junior high, the special education program consisted of practical courses for day-to-day living. Shop, home economics, physical education and art were offered to the students in addition to the academic subjects that they studied. Arithmetic, geography, handwriting and science were academic areas covered. Meaningful human relationships, facing the demands of society and the proper steps in obtaining and keeping a job were also discussed. Students showing marked improvement were encouraged to enter one of the regular courses.

Senior high special education students participated in a work-experience program every morning. They received on-the-job training at many area businesses. Afternoon courses included American history, science, geography and language arts. The training program has proved successful in helping students gain occupational positions after graduation and aiding their social adjustment.

Future Teachers Acquire Experience At SASHS

The faculty lounge provides a comfortable place to relax for Mrs. Holly Meneer and Mrs. Karen Henry after an exhausting day teaching English and French classes.

Student teachers from Indiana University of Pennsylvania and California State College learned as they taught under the careful guidance of members of our faculty. The student teachers concentrated on the field of their majors, but also observed classes in other subject areas.

An increased number of student teachers came to Somerset this year to work in the science, foreign language, English and music departments, as well as in the elementary grades.

Student teachers helped regular classroom teachers by taking over their classes and giving and correcting tests and assignments. Advising teachers had extra free time to devote to students who required more individual attention. Students were challenged by being exposed to new learning situations and methods of teaching presented by the student teachers. The student teachers themselves learned how to work with students and other teachers while putting their theory into practice.

Students Present Handiwork In Sculpture Exhibit

Junior high students studied art in nine-week blocks. Fields covered in the junior high were ceramics, sculpture, jewelry, graphics, architecture and stitchery. Art classes worked with many types of painting, including oil, tempera, water color and plastic.

Senior high students worked with the same media, but on a more advanced level. Advanced classes stressed understanding the basic principles of art.

Art students used various talents in designing program covers, invitations, posters and bulletin boards for different school functions. A special exhibit of student sculpture entertained parents on Open House night.

Sophomore and junior artists made use of their abilities when decorating for the Soph-Senior and the Junior Prom. Seniors created scenery for their class play. The art department also decorated the stage for special events such as the chorus Christmas concert.

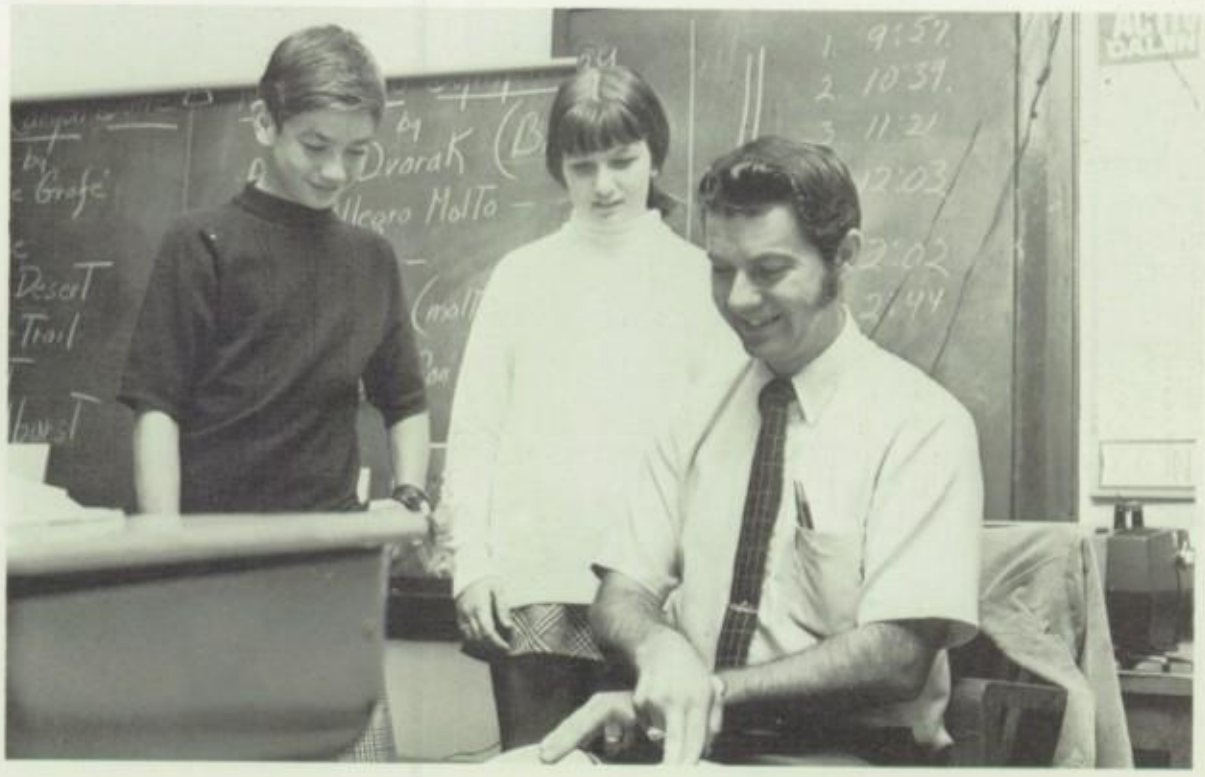
Seventh and eighth graders learned elements of music in general music classes. Freshmen studied theory, key signatures and composers. Instrumental music students composed the seventh grade band in addition to the eighth and ninth grade band. Interested students also participated in junior high orchestra and chorus.

The senior band appeared in numerous parades, highlighted by the Inaugural Parade for Governor Milton Shapp in Harrisburg. Other activities included football halftime shows, the uniform drive, county festival and spring concert. The orchestra participated in county festival, spring concert, the Maple Princess contest, Baccalaureate and Commencement. Christmas and spring concerts featured the chorus. The boys' octet and the new girls' ensemble provided special numbers. Students could elect music appreciation if they wanted further background.



Marsha Shockey is relieved to learn that her pulse, checked by Debbie Weller, is a normal seventy-two beats per minute.

MRS. BETTY SCHARF, Junior High Health

Defensive Driving Is Goal For Student Training

To have students view health as the key to growth, physical strength, mental well-being and happiness was an objective of the health department. In nine-week blocks junior high students learned proper health habits, causes and cures of common diseases and the structure and functions of the bones. Sophomores reviewed major organs of the body and emergency first aid techniques.

Highway safety classes prepared sophomores for road training by covering meanings of road signs, map reading and the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Code.

Students with learner's permits developed driving skills and gained practical experience behind the wheel in road training. Each student completing this course received a defensive driving certificate.

Impressionistic Dancing Spurs Creativity

Senior high boys lend a critical eye to their struggling classmates during a wrestling match in gym class.

Coordination and stamina were the goal as each physical education class began with calisthenics.

Junior high boys played soccer and volleyball. Wrestling, gymnastics and track skills added variety.

Physical activities presented to junior high girls included bowling, basketball and tumbling.

Senior high boys' speed and accuracy developed as they held paddleball matches and played dodgeball and softball. An important unit this year was wrestling.

Girls in the senior high learned skills they could use after graduation, including field hockey, volleyball and impressionistic dancing. Girls creating outstanding dances performed for the student body in a special assembly in January.

Each student took the annual physical fitness test. The boy and girl attaining the highest scores received trophies on Awards Day.

While creating their impressionistic dance, Dawn Lease and Corrine Ray discover that arabesques are more difficult to perform than they look.

Mr. Kissinger Makes Debut As Adviser To Council

Under the leadership of President Larry Barron and suggestions from the new adviser, Mr. Garvin Kissinger, the Student Council strived this year to act more as a sounding board for student opinion than as a mere isolated discussion group. The Council distributed bulletins to every homeroom each Wednesday morning to inform the entire school body about the meeting the previous day. Several types of questionnaires were given out to obtain direct student attitudes toward various subjects.

The Student Council encouraged the starting of girls' sports such as basketball and gymnastics. They sponsored and managed this year's Homecoming. The Council also purchased new ornaments for the high school's Christmas tree. As a result of Council action, the Board of School Directors approved the wearing of pants suits by girls and women faculty members on February 1, 1971.

The lid starts to close as Jim Troll makes the final inspection of the Council's January bulletin board.

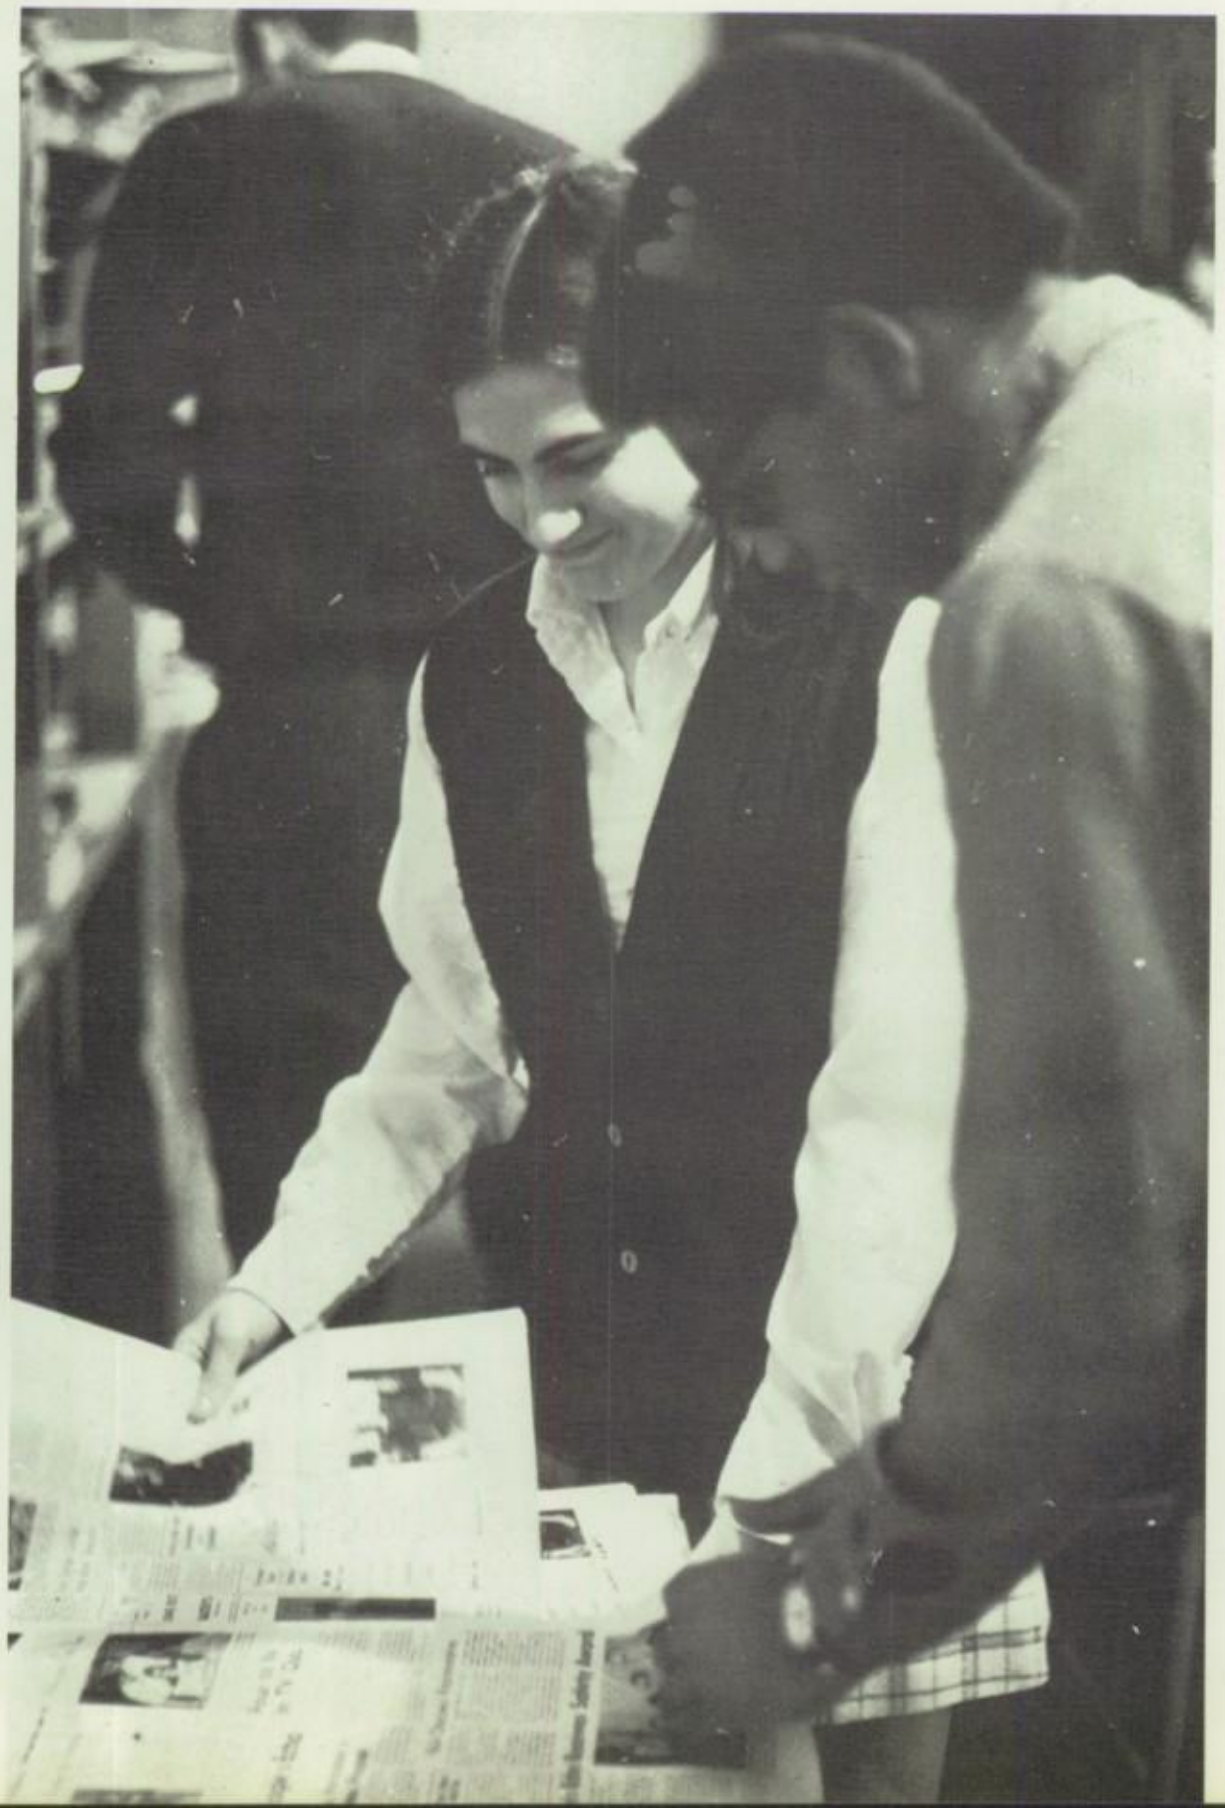
"Echo" Petitions Elimination Of Traffic Hazards

Linda Mapes assists Jules Yancey in stuffing "The Eagle's Echo."



"The Eagle's Echo," published monthly by the Newspaper Journalism II classes, kept the student body up to date. Editor-in-Chief Teri Dunmyer headed the staff, while Mr. Jay Christner acted as adviser. The 1969-70 "Eagle's Echo" was recognized for outstanding contributions toward safety and received a safety award, presented to Teri Dunmyer in Harrisburg.

Editorials presented pros and cons of pantsuits and different views on the school dress code. Included from time to time were reviews which informed readers what books were recent best sellers.

A special safety issued pointed out various traffic hazards in and around Somerset. An important adjunct of the project was a petition to recognize these danger spots and improve road conditions. As a result, action has been taken by the state highway safety commission to correct one of the worst of these situations.

Staff members sort copies of "The Eagle's Echo" into separate piles for later distribution.

To find all the names on all the pages and file them for the index is quite a job, Bob Moyer discovers.

Eaglet Staff Initiates Many Changes In '71 Book

With the assistance of Adviser Mrs. Phyllis Cindric, Editor-in-Chief Denise Lichty and the Eaglet staff made several changes in the 1970-71 yearbook from previous years. Layout followed a three-column format, while pictures were enlarged so that white space could be used more effectively.

More emphasis appeared on students as individuals instead of students as class members. Also, students were presented first in the book, followed by teachers. This was to underline their importance.

Denise Lichty and Copy Editor Mary Dosch gained many helps when they attended a yearbook journalism workshop at Kent State University in August 1970.

Seniors in FBLA comprised the business staff, directed by Mrs. Lilia Miller. These students directed the magazine sales and the compiling of patrons' lists. FBLA seniors also collected yearbook subscriptions and helped distribute the 1971 Eaglet.

After finding a problem in cropping a picture, Craig Hauger consults Mrs. Cindric for help.

Hi-Y Participates In Marathon Basketball Game

Affiliated with the YMCA, the Hi-Y strove to create and extend Christian character throughout the community by performing many different service projects. Mr. William Kuhlman was the club sponsor.

The Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y collaborated in building a float for the Homecoming Parade. During the Christmas season, club members assisted local firemen in putting up Christmas decorations around the community. The club also helped supervise Saturday morning basketball which was held at the Somerset Armory.

The Hi-Y invited other Somerset County Hi-Y Clubs to participate in a marathon basketball game in February, sponsored by the March of Dimes. In March several members attended a model Hi-Y legislature at Lebanon. Other members attended a mock United Nations session in Harrisburg in April.

During the marathon basketball game sponsored by the Hi-Y for the March of Dimes, Scott Boyer and Craig Custer battle for control of a jump ball.

Hi-Y officers for the year are President Tony Pacifico, Vice President Dean Hottle, Treasurer Craig Custer, Secretary Rick Smith and Chaplain Larry Barron.

Serving as Tri-Hi-Y officers for 1970-71 are (standing) President Sharon Augustine, Vice President Linda Mapes, Chaplain Susan Barron, Treasurer Barbara Beeghly and (seated) Secretary Barbara Stutzman.

Aiding Needy Family Adds To Tri-Hi-Y's Projects

Top saleswomen of the comb sales project Roxann Von Moose and Debbie Pletcher try to decide which prizes they want.

At the annual induction ceremony held in October the aims and projects of the 1970-71 Tri-Hi-Y were explained by club members to their parents. Club activities began with the selling of comb sets to the student body in order to raise money for a field trip.

During the yearly Heart Fund drive, the members of the Tri-Hi-Y sold heart lollipops to students. The club also sponsored a dance and collected contributions for the Care Fund. Along with these annual projects, the Tri-Hi-Y performed a new service by aiding a poverty-stricken family at Christmas.

Club members collaborated with the Hi-Y in making a float for the second annual Homecoming parade. Teen-Talk booklets provided topics for guest speakers and stimulated discussions of various problems during second semester meetings.

Amy Auman and Joanna Ogline find an interesting topic in the Teen-Talk booklets.

Vice President Teri Dunmeyer, Secretary Jackie Lease, President Nancy Lynch and Treasurer Joyce Miller lead students to further their knowledge of library science.

Library Club Sponsors Door-Decorating Contest

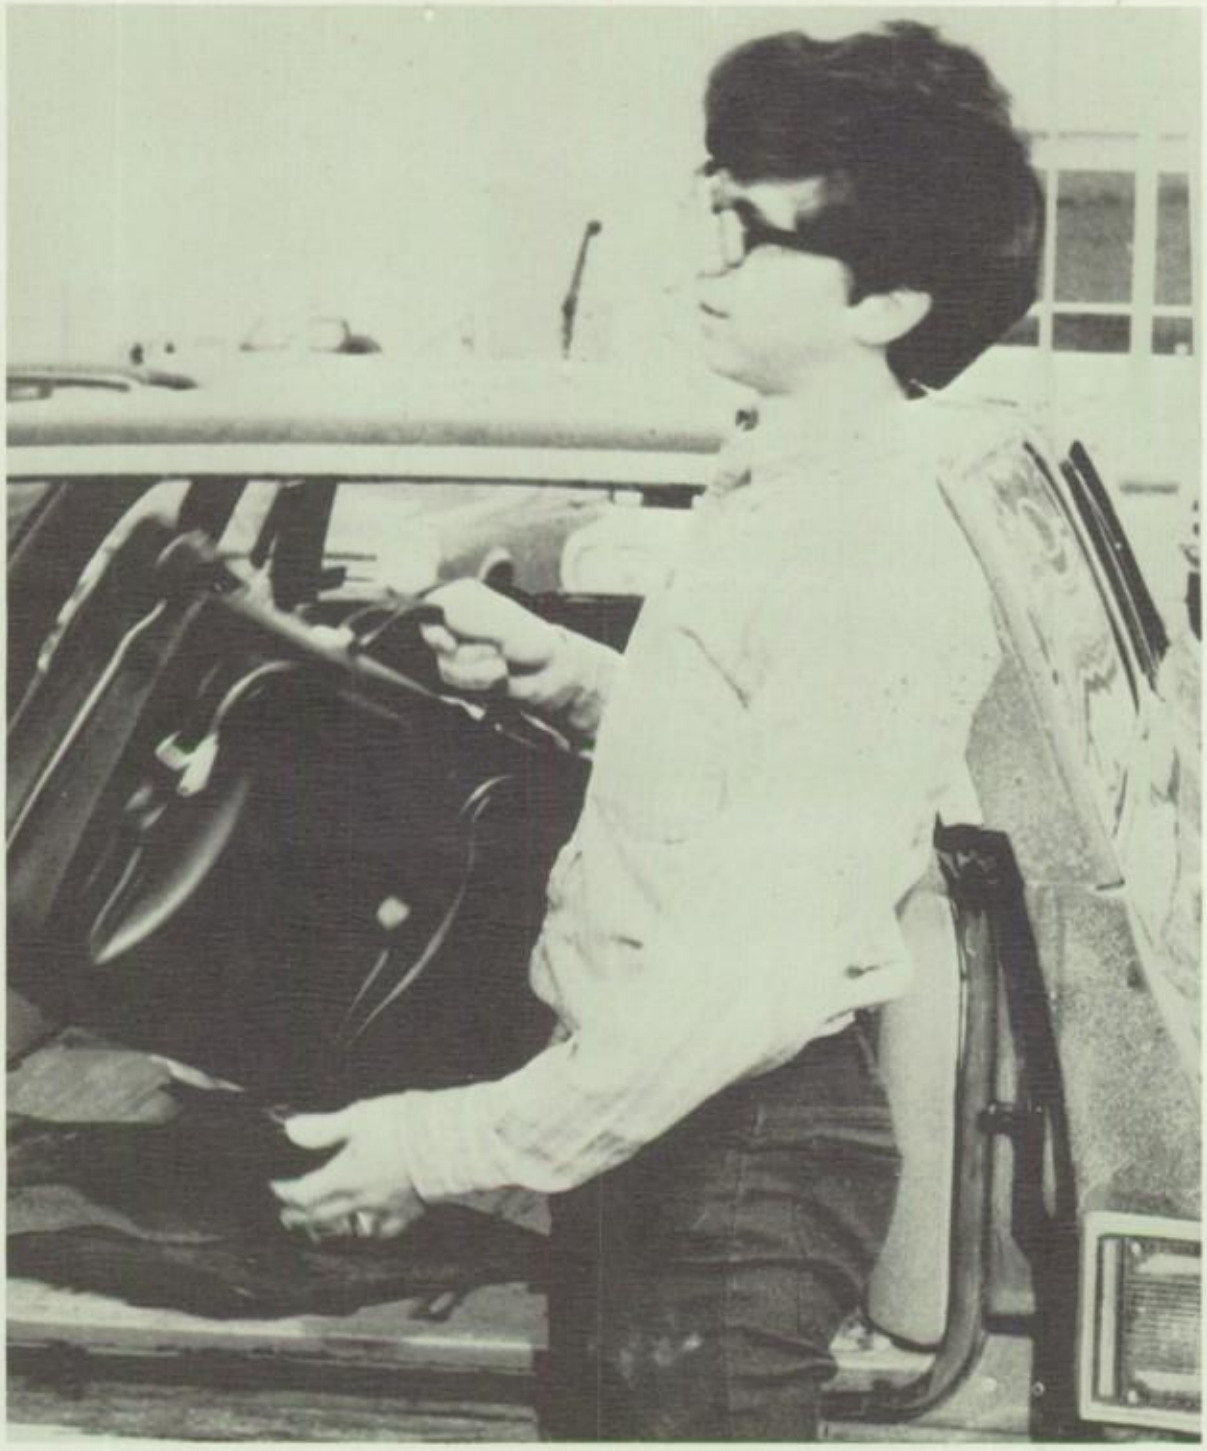
Under the direction of Mrs. Martha Halverson, the Library Club met every Wednesday eighth period. A continuous project of the club was keeping the library's bulletin boards and display cases up to date. All members worked in the library two or more periods each week, which enabled them to gain valuable experience in the field of library work. To add to the Christmas spirit of the school, the club sponsored the sixth annual Christmas door-decorating contest.

For their community service project the Library Club visited Somerset State Hospital weekly to entertain the patients by presenting a story hour.

Jeanne Schimpf, Joan Heiple and Sandy Dunmyer work on keeping the library's bulletin board up to date.

Mary Lee Brown, Becky Flick and Penny O'Connor help Mrs. Halverson by replacing books on the shelves.

Weaver Officiates As Lt. Governor In District 10



Jeff Cook prepares for the trip to Pittsburgh to attend the annual Key Club Convention.

Affiliated with Kiwanis, the Key Club served the school and community. They collected money for retarded children, Cerebral Palsy and the Heart Fund; held a breakfast for the Kiwanis Club; helped the Women's Club set up their annual Christmas bazaar; and rang the Christmas bell for the Salvation Army.

At the district convention, held in Pittsburgh in 1970, Craig Weaver was inducted as Lieutenant Governor for Division Ten. In March 1971 Craig and several other members attended the district convention held in the Poconos.

Randy Elliott and Craig Weaver attended the International Convention in Los Angeles in July. Mr. Richard Gould was club sponsor.

Key Club officers for the 1970-71 year are Secretary Craig Weaver, President Robert Moyer, Treasurer Mike Cascio and Vice-President Randy Elliot.

Working on a Key Club project, Jeff Burkett paints the band section of the bleachers.

Jeff Ankney adds some facial expressions to the program that he and Dave Ankeny are taping.

Club Broadcasts Veterans Day Program At School

With the cooperation of WVSC, the members of the Radio Club learned how to use the facilities of a radio station. By presenting a program each month, the members became acquainted with the engineering and controlling phase of radio programming. They also learned how to read news and perform other duties that are essential to good radio broadcasting.

During their programs the club members reported school news and presented other items of interest that were related to the school. Interviews with the varsity athletic coaches, fashion news and record shows were included.

In addition to broadcasting their radio programs, the Radio Club presented a Veteran's Day program on the high school public address system.

Before the broadcast, Steve Richard gives a once-over to the controls at the radio station.

Mr. Christner audits a program taped by Radio Club members.

Ski Club Grows As Sport Enthuses More Students

James Acey loads skis as his passengers Susan Miller and Debi Pensiero urge him to hurry.

Winning second place for their float in the Homecoming Parade marked the beginning of the Ski Club's yearly activities. The float showed a snowmobile and a marooned skier in a snowbank.

Ski lessons, open to all students, were sponsored by the club. For a series of five weeks, lessons were held each Monday after school at Hidden Valley Resort. Racing lessons were offered to advanced skiers for the first time.

Besides visiting Hidden Valley, the Ski Club made several trips to Seven Springs and other local resorts. Any member of the Ski Club was eligible to obtain a half-price pass for lift tickets and rental equipment at Hidden Valley. Mr. Thomas Fridy served as sponsor for the club.

Anxious to get to the slopes, Cliff Glovier and Eileen Barbera wait for the bus.

Vice-President Susan Barron, Secretary Betsy Weimer, Treasurer Dean Hottle and President Mary Dosch are ready to try the new-fallen snow.

Cameramen Print Photos For School Publications

Providing well-trained photographers for "The Eagle's Echo" and the Eaglet was the main objective of the Camera Club. In addition to taking and developing pictures for these school publications, experienced members of the Camera Club instructed younger members in the art of taking pictures so that they could assume the positions of photographers on future staffs. Underclass photographers were also instructed in the proper use of darkroom facilities.

Lynn Walker and Robert Wright were "The Eagle's Echo" photographers, while Jon Matthews, Steve Richard and David Schrock did the photographic work for the Eaglet.

Club members met Wednesdays after school with Lynn Walker serving as president, Mr. Richard Gould was the club's adviser.

Camera Club members Jon Matthews, Lynn Walker and Robert Wright look into the camera from a different angle.

Mr. Kuhlman shows Dean Hottle and Howard Berkey how to use the new calculating machine to solve a difficult math problem.

Students Expound On Math Topics

Members of the advanced math class belonged to Mu Alpha Theta, a national organization for math students who have achieved an adequate background in higher mathematics. Under the guidance of Mr. William Kuhlman, the club met every other Friday morning. At their meetings the members gave talks on various fields of mathematics. Some of the topics they reported on were Fibonacci members, magic squares and probability. Other interesting topics relating to the study of higher mathematics were discussed. Members also had the opportunity to use several different calculating machines in solving their problems.

Rodney Hardesty was elected president. He was assisted by Vice-President Mary Dosch. Other officers were Secretary Dean Hottle and Treasurer Howard Berkey. All of the members received certificates of club membership at the Awards Day assembly.

Mary Dosch uses a deck of cards to help with her Mu Alpha Theta talk.

Arranging an anti-pollution display on the physics bulletin board are Mike Cascio, Doug Weimer and George Kaufman.

Concerned Youth Form STOP To Combat Pollution

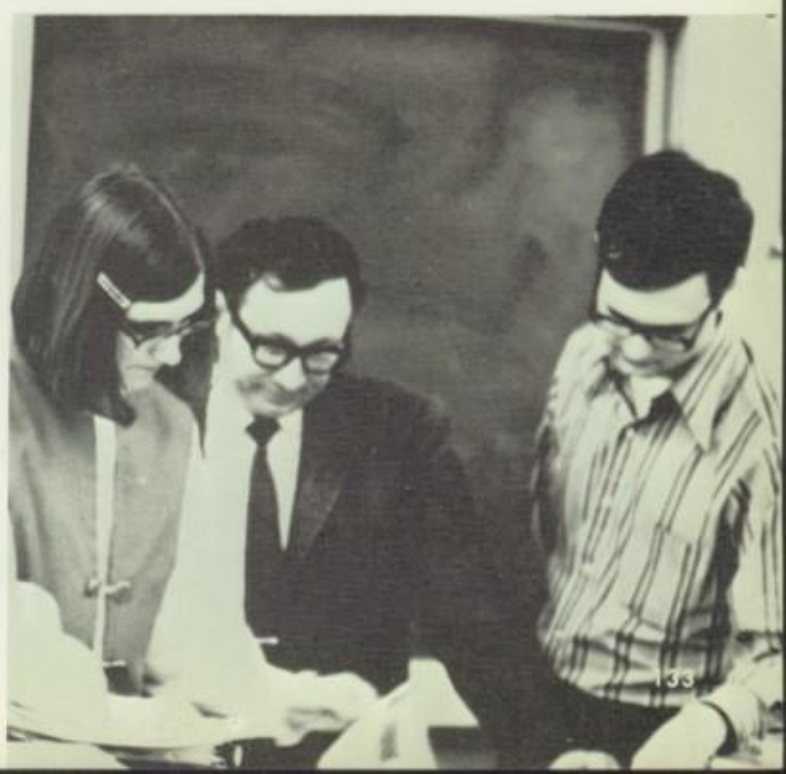
Noël Snyder shows slides from her trip to the Florida Marine Biology Seminar.

STOP — Students To Oppose Pollution — was the name adopted by this year's Science Club. Under the direction of Mr. Robert Rhodes, Mr. Richard Gould and Mr. Ottis Baer, club members investigated the different types of pollution found in Somerset County. They tried to determine methods of making people of the area aware of the problems pollution creates. The completed work laid the foundation for next year's Science Club to produce a movie about pollution.

Noël and Patty Sawzik, who traveled to Florida over the Christmas vacation to participate in a special seminar on Marine Biology, offered the club new information about this field.

STOP met after school on Mondays. Ann Brubaker served as president. Other officers were Vice-President Ronald Stern, Secretary Mary Dosch and Treasurer Teri Dunmyer.

Making final plans for a field trip are Ann Brubaker, Mr. Rhodes and Douglas Weimer.



Fiddling around with the lively tune "Plink, Plank, Plunk" are Patty Sawzik and Diane Gerhardt.

Four Students Participate In Regional Orchestra

Under the direction of Mr. Chester Singer, the senior high Orchestra's first performance was a prelude to the Maple Princess contest in December. Participating in the annual spring orchestra-chorus concert and South County Band Festival, held at Somerset, the Orchestra played such numbers as "Toccata," "The March of the Meistersingers" and "The Great Gate of Kiev."

Several members attended Central-Central Western District Orchestra at Roosevelt Junior High School in Altoona.

Climaxing the year, the orchestra took part in Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises.

Student teacher Mr. John M. Krocsko from Indiana University of Pennsylvania directs the orchestra with concentration.

Different members react differently to one of Mr. Singer's jokes during rehearsal.

New Girls' Ensemble Demonstrates Balanced Tone

Members of the Boys' Octet are: (top) Dave Ankeny, Jeff Burkett, (third) Bill Peters, John Runner, (second) John Ross, Larry Hoffman, (first) Larry Barron and Robert Moyer.

Holiday music arrived early in October for the chorus. The Christmas concert was opened by Soloist Jeanne Barbera singing "O Holy Night." Bells added lilt to "Sleigh Ride," while candles created atmosphere for "The Christ Theme." Miss Elaine Tselbis, student teacher from Indiana University of Pennsylvania, directed the girls in "Mary's Lullaby."

Six members accompanied director Mr. John Dice to District Chorus at Bishop McCort High School. They were Gloria Brant, Jeff Burkett, Donna Mostoller, Robert Moyer, Rosemary Raszewski and John Runner.

At the annual orchestra-chorus concert, the chorus included the contemporary selections "Both Sides Now" and "A Thing Called Love."

The Folk Group gave performances at the March of Dimes Spectacular, the Lions Club variety show and the Rotary Club.

Selling Of Concert Albums Aids Band In Purchase

During the summer of 1970 Somerset band members sold records to raise money for the purchase of new uniforms. The records, featuring the senior high band on one side and the junior high band on the other, were sold for a minimum donation of $5.00. Along with the money the school board allotted, the band raised $5,000, creating a total of $12,500.

On January 19, the band traveled to Harrisburg to march in the state inaugural parade after receiving a perosnal invitation from Governor-elect Milton Shapp. All expenses were paid by the school board, including lunch packed by the cafeteria staff and dinner at the Post House restaurant in Breezewood.

Participating in the District Band festival at Brookville were Russell Miller, Melissa Mayer, Betsy Weimer, Debra Pile, Diane Gerhardt, Rosemary Raszewski and Mary Dosch.

Teachers From Many Colleges Address Seminars

This year students from area schools again participated in Science Seminar and Humanities Seminar. These two groups of outstanding students selected from Somerset County schools met every other Saturday morning at Somerset Area Senior High. They discussed topics with professors from Penn State, Juniata College, the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown and St. Francis College. The purpose of these programs was to introduce the students to advanced fields relating to science and the humanities.

Science Seminar heard lectures on cardinal numbers, infinity, the recycling of waste materials, animal behavior, protozoans and genetics. The adviser for Science Seminar was Mr. Robert Rhodes.

Humanities Seminar, under the direction ot Mr. Jay Christner, took part in discussions of art, music, philosophy and other related fields.

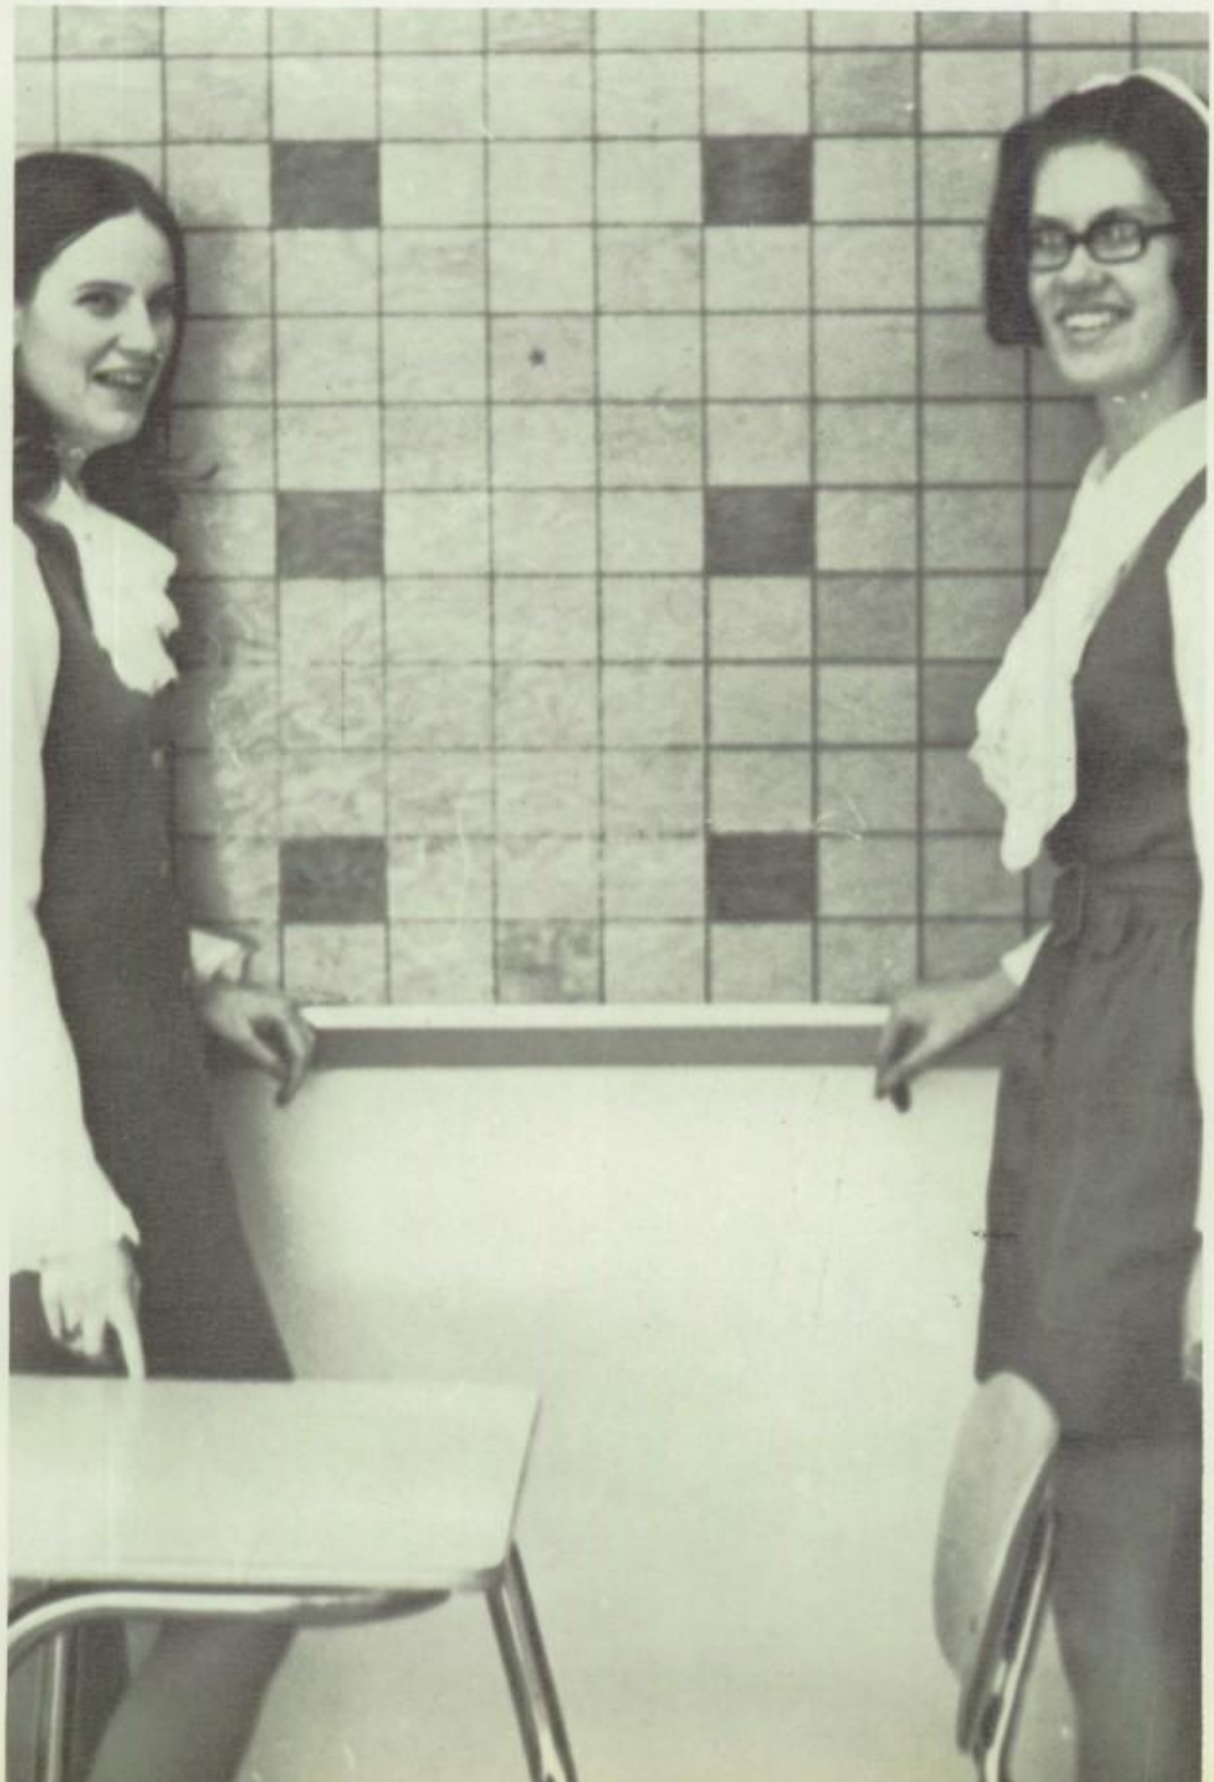
Members Combine Talents To Form German Band

Corrine Ray and Dawn Lease try to coax Mr. Harris into getting out the German scrabble tiles for an educational scrabble game.



Deutscher Verein, German Club, consisted of interested German III and IV students, who met the third Thursday of each month. The first activity for the German Club this year was a picnic at the farm of club member Jeff Cook early in the fall. Adviser Mr. John Harris aided in organizing the German Band, a new venture for German Club members. Participants in this band played for the enjoyment of club members.

Two German girls, Gisela Michael and Irmgard Bokel, spoke to the club in December about schools, dances, music and customs in Germany. Plans were made to invite German clubs from other schools throughout Somerset County to attend Deutscher Verein meetings to participate in festive evenings of German scrabble, singing, folk-dancing and eating.

Demonstrating the art of German folk dancing are President Jeff Burkett, Secretary Ann Brubaker, Vice-President Jeff Ankney and Treasurer Rose Raszewski.

Spanish Club Visits Washington D. C. With Tri-Hi-Y

Adviser Mrs. Antoinette Cesarone initiated three Spanish clubs to replace the one club of the past two years. Julio George, a Brazilian student living in America for one year, spent a week at Somerset High School. These clubs sponsored his visit.

A fall activity for the Spanish II Club was a party at which a colorful piñata was broken, spilling candies and gifts. A joint project for Spanish II and III Clubs was singing Spanish Christmas carols for patients at the Somerset Community Hospital. The third-year club attended a hockey game at Johnstown in January.

Every fourth monday of the month one Spanish IV club member presented a program entirely in Spanish. Also, each student prepared a food or a beverage, explaining the culinary procedure in Spanish.

Preparing to play a Maurice Chevalier record are Vickie Younkin and Bonnie Uphouse.

With Mrs. Colette Sherren serving as adviser, the French club consisted of French IV students.

Activities for the year included attending a club picnic, sponsoring dances after football and basketball games, decorating a float for Homecoming, celebrating at a Christmas party, entering the Christmas door-decorating contest and viewing slides of France. Along with French III students, members also sold stationery in order to purchase a fan for the French room.

In May the club presented an award to the outstanding French student.

Arrangements were made for a 17-day European tour during summer 1971.

Jackie Lease, Susan Miller and Betsy Weimer practice their French with the help of flash cards.

NHS Initiates Beautification Plan By Buying Bulbs

With advisers Mrs. Pauline Glessner and Mr. Richard Flick, the National Honor Society launched its year's activities by purchasing flower bulbs last fall in a project to beautify the school grounds. Mr. Quentin Hine and several agriculture students planted these bulbs.

This school term was the first that the National Honor Society received Highlights, official magazine for National Honor Societies and Student Councils.

5% of the junior class and 10% of the senior class were selected as new members to the National Honor Society. Criteria for membership included recommendations based upon scholarship, leadership, service and character.

Yearbook journalism students had to fulfill the same academic requirements and demonstrate laudable yearbook production work.

Induction was held on April 26, when members conducted the candlelight service. Following the ceremony, a reception was held for new members and their parents. Mrs. Phyllis Cindric and Mr. Jay Christner served as advisers.

Cadet Teaching Offers Students Preview Of Future

On October 22 FTA began their year with the induction and installation of new members. Activities included a field trip to Slippery Rock State College, a teachers' tea during American Education Week, the sponsoring of after-game dances and the annual cadet teaching day in April, when members were given the experience of a day of actual teaching.

For their meetings, club members, with the advice of Miss Marie Brant, prepared programs, selected films and invited student teachers to speak.

In August the club president and the adviser attended the State Leadership Workshop. Somerset was also represented at the Central-Western regional workshop, the Central-Western regional conference and the Somerset County conference held at Rockwood. Two delegates attended the State Convention at Harrisburg in April.

Committee members Tracy Gnagey and Cindy Custer work on invitations for the faculty tea sponsored by the club during American Education Week.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Lilia Miller, the Future Business Leaders of America packaged and sent Christmas cheer boxes to Somerset graduates in Viet Nam as their first semester project. Seventeen packages were shipped, each priced at $6.37.

Another project sponsored by the club was the collection of Betty Crocker coupons to help in the purchase of a Beckman Glucose Analyzer for the Somerset Community Hospital. Acting as chairman for this project was Paula Pyle of the Rockwood Chapter of FBLA. Over 100,000 coupons were collected from Somerset Area High School.

The club participated in the fall regional workshop at Washington, Pa., where regional officers were elected, and the spring regional workshop at California, Pa., where contests of business skills and abilities were conducted.

Homemakers Boast Winnings In Competition

Winning second place at the Somerset County Fair for their exhibit "Open the Door to Success" launched the club year for the Future Homemakers of America. At Homecoming the club's float won first place. Their exhibit "Look What's New on the Home Economics Line" drew attention in the windows at Pogel's Sewing Center during American Education Week.

Advised by Mrs. Patricia McNaul, the club planned activities and field trips around the year's theme "To Dare Is to Care."

Officers attended the Leadership Training Program at Conemaugh Township High School in October. Later the club elected delegates to attend the State FHA Conference at Pittsburgh in March.

Christmas activities included caroling and the door-decorating contest, in which they again submitted a prize-winning entry. The club also sponsored regular teacher's teas throughout the year.

Putting final touches on their Christmas favors are Alice Lensbouer, Candice Pugh and Jackie Lyons.

After last minute preparations, President Linda Nightingale, Vice President Arlene Fullerton, Secretary Roxanne Sarver, Treasurer Barbara Niehenke, News Reporter Holly Swank and Historian Hazel Hoffman await the arrival of the teachers to one of their FHA teas.

Keystone Farmer's Degrees were awarded to Robert Baer and Clark Ream for their outstanding achievements in agriculture studies. Jack Wagner and Mark Claycomb attended conferences of the Pennsylvania Association of Farmers Co-operatives.

The officers of the club attended the County Leadership Training Conference in order to become more adept leaders. During January, club members took a field trip to the State Farm Show in Harrisburg.

Moneymaking projects included their annual Christmas tree sale and the selling of seeds, onion plants and tulip bulbs. In April, the FFA's annual roller-skating party was held in Bedford. Mr. Quentin Hine served as FFA advisor.

Heading Vocational Machine Shop Club were President Craig Murray, Treasurer Allen Palmer, Vice President Lenny Friedline and Secretary Don Fritz.

New Shop Club Constructs Die-Casting Machine

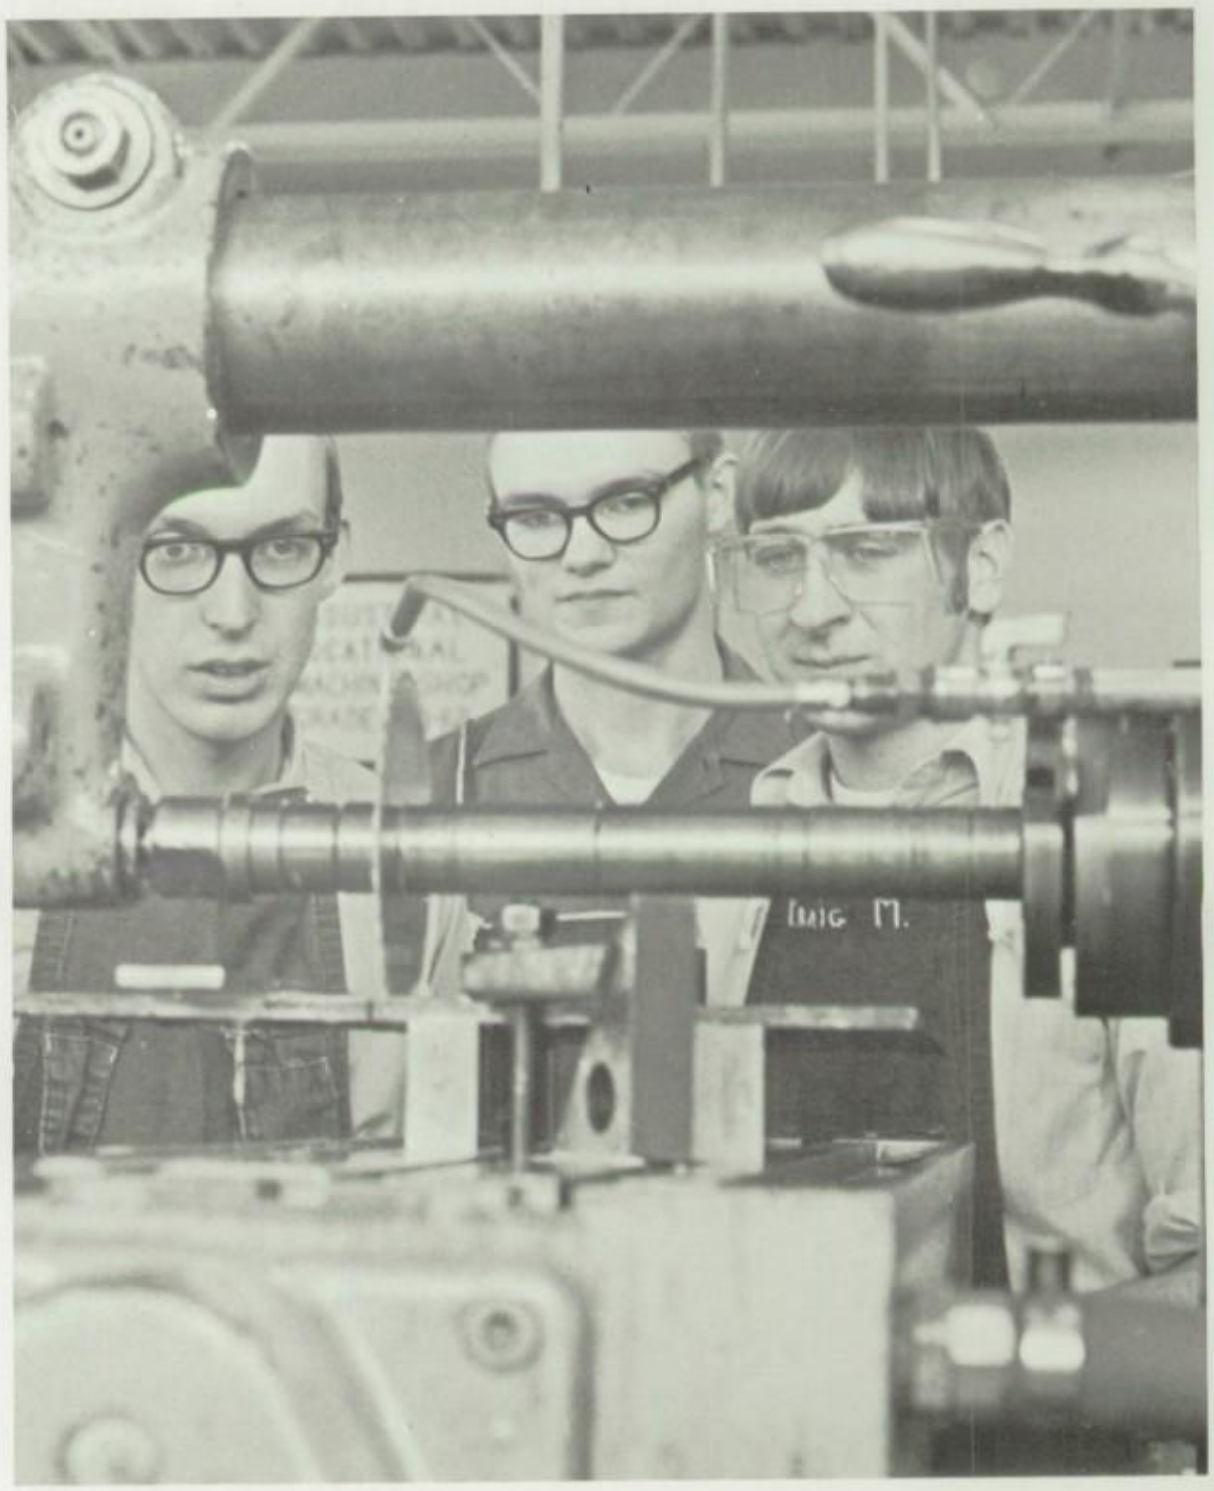
Newly organized this year, the Machine Shop Club was created to help shop students perfect the many techniques used in their various projects. Mr. Herbert Schimpf served as the club sponsor.

A necessary accomplishment was made in the field of die-casting when the club finished building its die-cast machine. This machine enabled the students to make whatever they wanted, provided that molds could be made. Forming small replicas of the Liberty Bell was one project the new machine helped members to successfully complete.

Another club project was the designing of a vacuum-forming machine. By the use of suction the machine created a vacuum that pulled a heated plastic sheet over a mold.

Working on the plastic injection machine, John Smith puts the finishing touches to his project.

Vocational machine shop boys Rodney Fieg, Donald Fritz and Terry Hoffman study the use of the new vacuum pumping machine.



Booster Club Seeks Student Involvement

Performing a skit at a pep assembly, club members kindle school spirit.

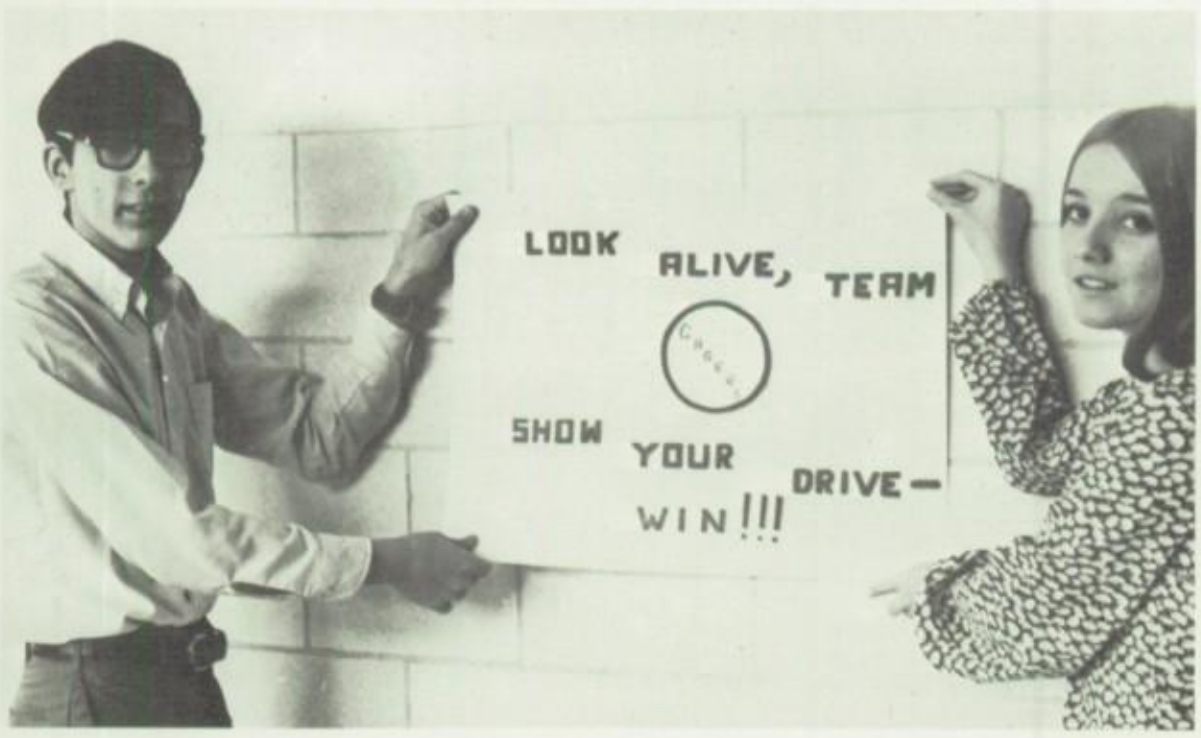
Advised by Mrs. Ruth Coleman and Mr. James McCall, the Booster Club promoted school spirit and activities by performing skits at pep rallies, making pep signs, supporting a cheering section at basketball games and handing out printed school cheers to students.

The club's first project was a school picnic and dance at Tippecanoe Park. The club also held a submarine sandwich sale, organized a roller-skating party, assisted the Jaycees in collecting and repairing toys for needy children at Christmas and collected for the Vincent Lombardi cancer fund.

Members sponsored a dance and a Ken Lantzy Day for the benefit of Ken Lantzy, a football player from Cambria Heights who was seriously injured in the Cambria Heights-Windber football game.

Indecision plagues Regina Miller at the all-school picnic and dance as she surveys the great variety of food.

Alan Foster and Nicki Brugh put up a pep sign before the first basketball game of the season, in hopes that Somerset will win.



Girls Volunteer Spare Time To Help At Hospital

Girls in the junior and senior high schools who wished to further their knowledge as hospital aides in their spare time worked as Candy Stripers. Duties of the girls consisted of feeding patients, making beds and running errands for patients and staff members. Students planning on a nursing career gained valuable experience as well as personal satisfaction by working in the hospital. An orientation program conducted on Saturday mornings taught new volunteers their basic duties. Those girls working fifty hours received their own caps. After serving one hundred hours, each Candy Striper received a pin. A bar for the pin was the award for each additional hundred hours of service devoted. Mrs. Fred Rayman, R.N., supervised the program.

Members Entertain Patients At Christmas

Packaging goods to provide a needy family with a Thanksgiving dinner are Debbie Igou and Linda Mapes.

Organized to promote interest in the field of health, the Health Careers Club was active all year. One of the club's annual service projects was the preparation of a Thanksgiving basket for a needy family in the community. Their principal project for the year was a Christmas party for the patients at the Siemon Nursing Home, where members of the club brought little gifts for the patients. Club members held several bake sales throughout the year in order to raise money which was needed for their various projects. The remaining money was used by the club members for different trips to institutions engaged in the health and nursing fields. All the club's ideas and projects were discussed by the members at regular club meetings held every second and fourth Monday evening.

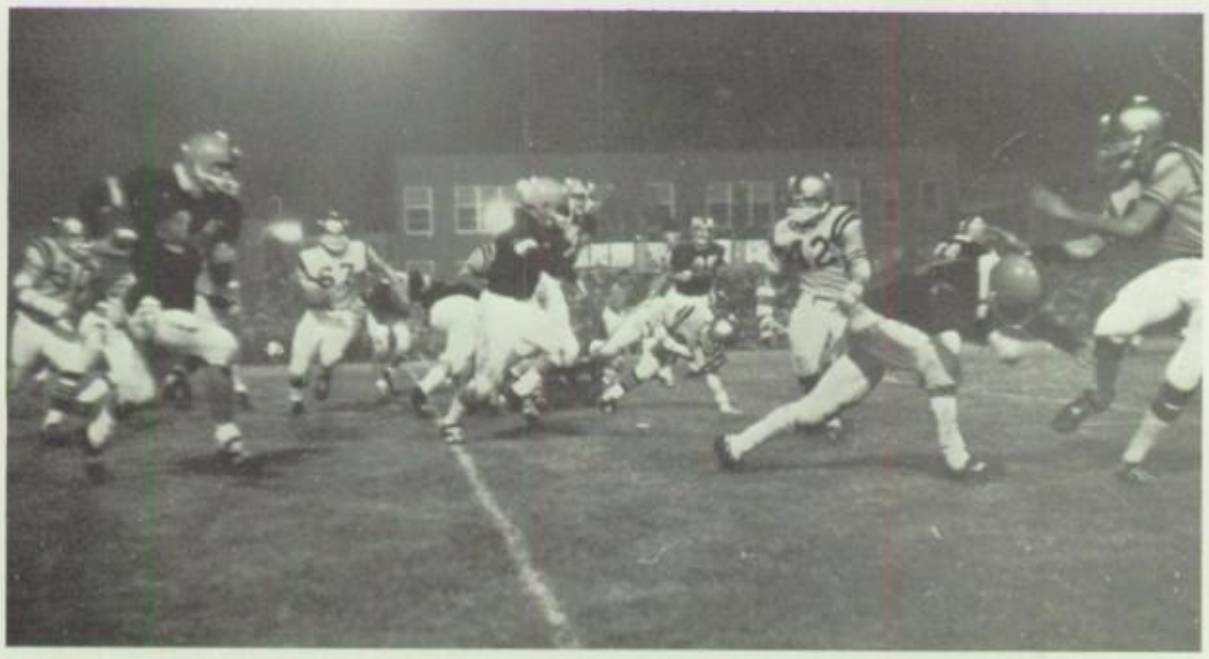
Team Builds Depth With Six Underclassmen



Lack of size and depth was the story of the 1971 football team. Finishing with a disappointing 2-7 record, the Eagles were hampered with injuries and had to go with inexperienced players most of the season. With a 40-man squad and six returning lettermen, Coach Weaver's team started the season by upsetting Cambria Heights in the final quarter 16-12. From then on the Eagles found the going rough against larger, more experienced opponents, losing their next seven games including an 8-0 loss in the last minute of the game to North Star. The highlight of the losing season came when the team finally put it all together to end with a 15-12 victory against Conemaugh.

Sam Crouse received recognition by the Johnstown Tribune-Democrat as an oustanding halfback.

The Eagles reap a big gain as fullback Craig Custer clears a path for halfback Sam Crouse.

Coach Chester Pfeffer, Dave Ankeny, Bill McNelly, Jeff Bender, Dennis Sprock, Ray Ellis, Jim Knepper, Albert Graham.

Having dropped matches only to Rockwood and Bedford, the Somerset Area golf team ended their season with an improved record of eight wins and two losses. After winning Section Three of the Inter-County Conference, the team met Westmont and Bishop Carroll, who were the winners of Sections One and Two respectively. The overall champion was decided when Westmont totaled 18½ points to Bishop Carroll's 11½ and Somerset's 8½. Coach Pfeffer attributed the winning season to the great depth of the team rather than to any individual's ability. On the first Saturday in May four of our varsity golfers represented Somerset in the District Five tournament. Winners advanced to the State finals, held at Penn State University golf course in State College.

Bill McNelly, with a look of chagrin, watches his putt fall short of the cup in a match with Rockwood.

Mr. Clay Directs Cross-Country As New Coach

Under the new direction of Coach James Clay, the 1970-71 cross country team completed its third year of competition at Somerset. Consisting of only five members from both the junior and senior high schools, the team lacked the depth necessary to win. Participating in a full schedule of meets, which varied in size from dual meets to meets with three other schools, the team finished this year with a season record of 0-7. Two of our top runners were seniors Kerry Schilling and Mickey Talley. The team ended the season when they participated along with fourteen other schools in the annual Ferndale Invitational Cross Country meet.

Wrestling Adds New Competition To Intramurals

Getting a reversal, Randy Brant gains control of his opponent.

Under the direction and supervision of Mrs. Ruth Coleman and Mr. David Maize, interested students participated in the 1970-1971 intramural sports program. The program was designed to instill sportsmanship and provide a field of athletic competition for those students not involved in interscholastic sports.

The boys' schedule included paddleball — singles and doubles, wrestling, handball and volleyball, while the girls participated in basketball and bowling.

In paddleball and wrestling the boys began individual eliminations in each gym class. The winners entered an elimination tournament played before the student body, where the over-all winner was decided.

The girls carried out their program after school in the gym and at the Roof Garden Bowling Center.

New Basketball Coaches Introduce Platoon System

Breaking into the open, Jerry Coleman takes a jump shot.

Under new Head Coach Nedrow, the Somerset basketball squad finished with a 2-20 record. Lack of experience and height contributed to the team's poor record. With Coach Nedrow's revolutionized platoon system, the Eagles found the going rough against experienced opponents. The squad started the season by losing to Rockwood 83-64, but came back to beat Meyersdale 79-66 in a well fought game. Then the team dropped their next thirteen in a row before defeating Meyersdale again in a close 72-68 battle for their second victory. Through this season's play, the sophomore and junior members of the squad gained experience needed for a winning season in the future.

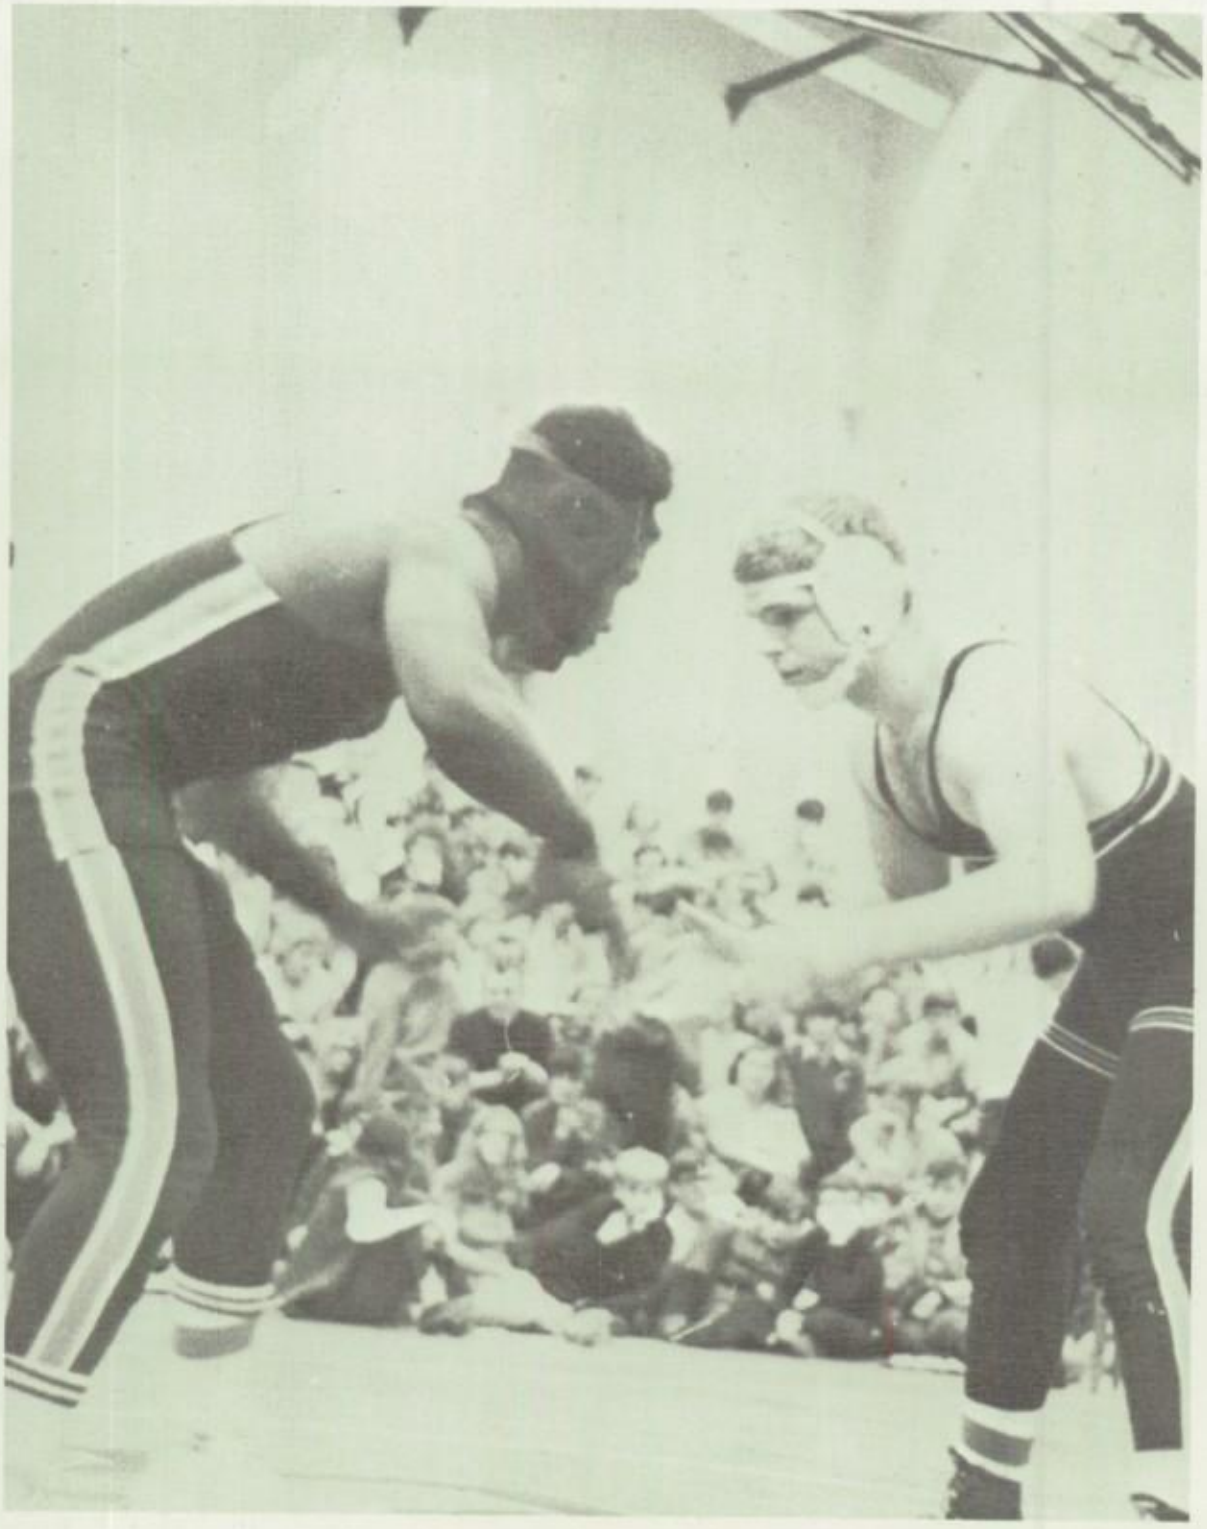
Mapes, Pensiero Serve As Co-Captains Of Squad

Barry Mapes waits for an opening in the championship match at Conemaugh's Christmas Tournament.



Starting off slowly, the Somerset wrestling team gained experience, finishing the season with a record of 6-6-1. The first match of the year saw Somerset lose to Richland Area by only five points. Lack of depth in several weight classes was a key factor throughout the season. Two returning lettermen, Barry Mapes and Randy Murray, completed successful seasons. Mapes won the 164-pound weight class title in the annual Christmas Tournament, held at Conemaugh Area.

Coaches for the season were Mr. James McCall and Mr. Ray Shaulis.

Several wrestlers represented Somerset at the District V meet on March 6.

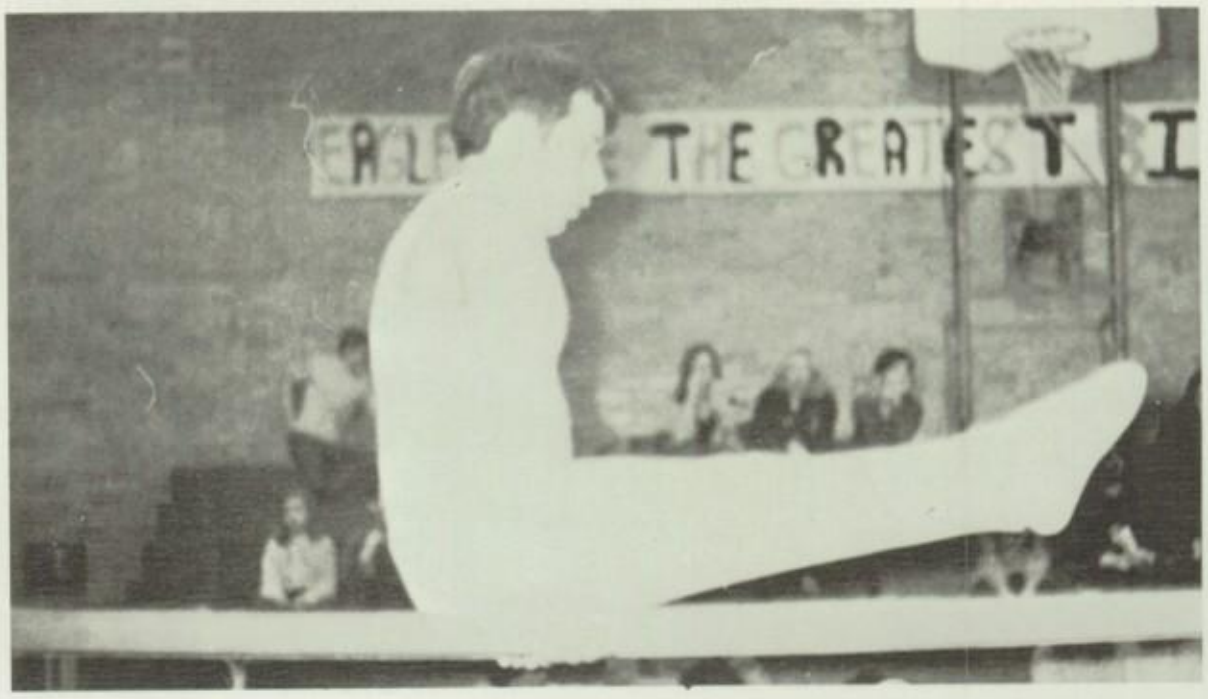
Gym Team Cops 3rd In Altoona Invitational Meet

Under Coach Edward Joseph, the 1970-71 gymnastics team participated in interscholastic competition for the third straight year. Ron Yancey, former gymnast, assisted Coach Joseph at practice. The team improved in all six events, including horizontal bar, parallel bars, rings, free exercise, vaulting and side horse. Six seniors supported by seven underclassmen completed the season of five dual meets. Somerset also participated in the annual Altoona Invitational Tournament, where the team placed third in a field of eight. Jules Yancey and Craig Beal took first and third places respectively on the side horse in that meet. Somerset competed in the district meet at Altoona and in the regional meet at Butler, Pennsylvania. Penn State University hosted the state meet this year at University Park.



Neal Parker adds strength to his parallel bar routine by holding an L-seat.

In a side horse routine, Jules Yancey shows expertise by doing a hop.

Trackmen Shatter Opposition In District V Meet

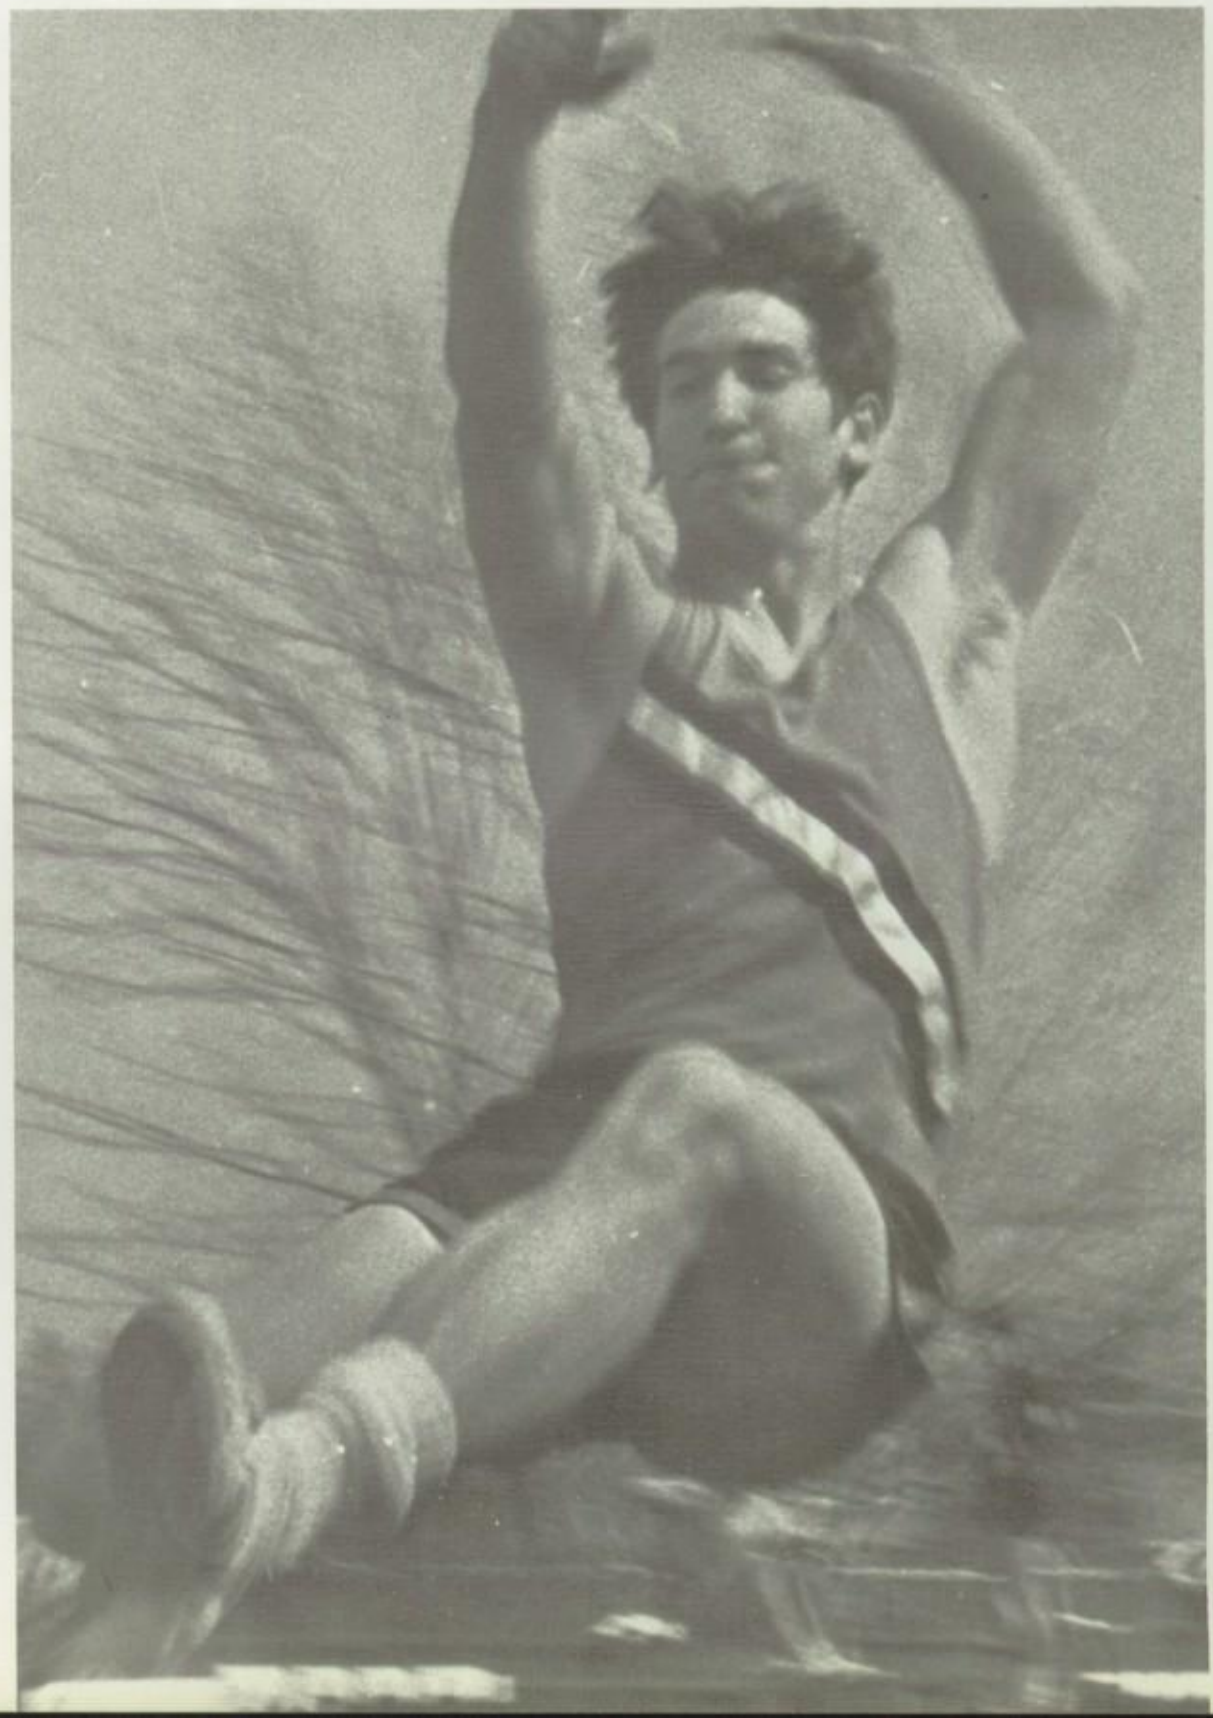
Small, compact and good described the 1970 Somerset track team as they completed a 9-2 season record, going undefeated in dual and triangular meets. With eighteen men, Coach Pfrogner took his team on to break a total of eight records. They also won the Mountain Relays, the District Five meet and the Somerset County trophy. A defeat at the Mountain Conference was the result of a ½-point lead by Richland Area.

The team entered the Beall Invitational Tournament at Frostburg, Maryland, losing to well rounded tri-state competitors.

On May 25 eleven varsity members entered state competition at Penn State University.

Against Forrest Hills, Clarence Trout and Larry Sarver give Somerset first and second place.

Mark Martz clears 6 feet against Richland and Bedford for a school record.



Clarence Trout and Craig Custer battle each other as Somerset takes first and second place in the 440-yard dash.

Frank Kerch takes first place in the javelin while setting a school record of 178'4".

Breaking the tape and tying the existing 100-yard dash record of 10.2 seconds is Larry Sarver.

Mark Martz sets a new school record of 6 feet in the high jump.

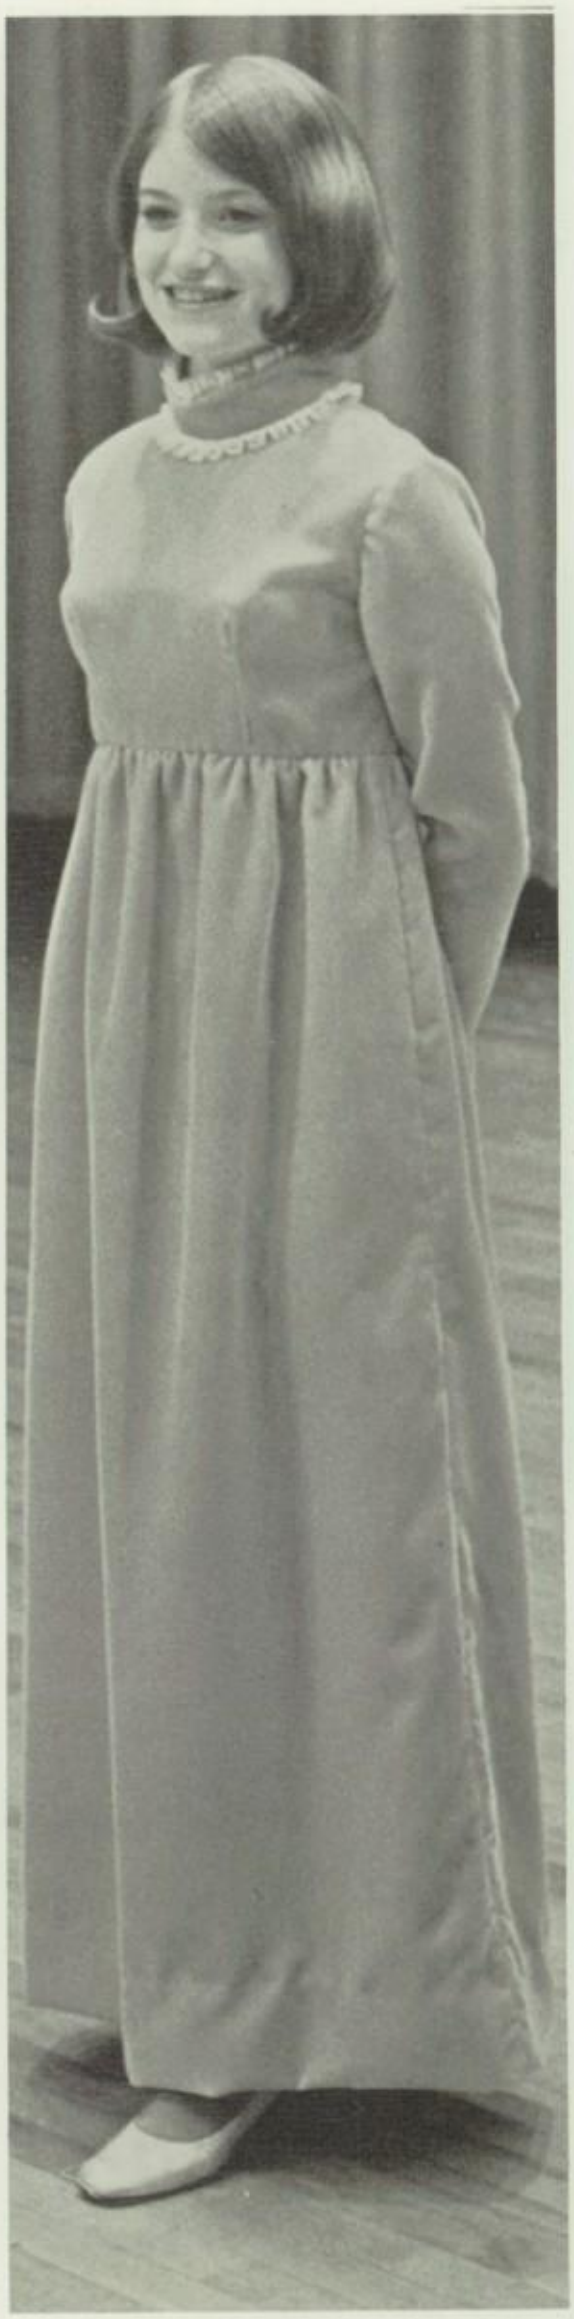
Teams Select Queens To Represent Each Sport

Basketball Queen Sally Whipperman gained her title at the Rockwood basketball game. Serving as her attendants were seniors Rosemary Raszewski and Linda Mapes.



Crowned Wrestling Queen at the Tussey Mountain match, Jean Coyle reigned over the entire wrestling season. Her court was composed of junior Betsy Ross and sophomore Diane Walker.

At the North Star football game, Barbara Stutzman was named Football and Homecoming Queen. Attending her were Susan Shaulis and Diane Walker.

In keeping with the formal air of a queen and her court even the touch of hands is made regal.

The symbol of royalty rests sedately on a satin cushion before each queen crowning ceremony.

Another part of the tradition, flowers add a splash of colorful dignity to the event.

Earning Varsity Letter Qualifies Athletes For Club

Sponsored by Mr. Carl Waugaman, the S Club consisted of athletes who earned their varsity letters. There are certain requirements which must be met to earn a letter. These requirements include participation in at least one half of the total quarters in football or forty per cent of the quarters in basketball. Wrestling, cross country and track participants were awarded their letters for total number of points accumulated or by places earned in the District Five finals. Gymnasts and golfers earned their letters by competing in a given number of matches. Club members received their letter jackets as seniors.

Cheerleaders Host Annual Contest At Somerset

Varsity cheerleaders included (top) Amy McClintock, Cindy Custer, Linda Mapes, Linda Schrock, (bottom) Susie Shaulis, Betsy Ross, Denise Lichty, Donna Mostoller and Joni Stumpf.

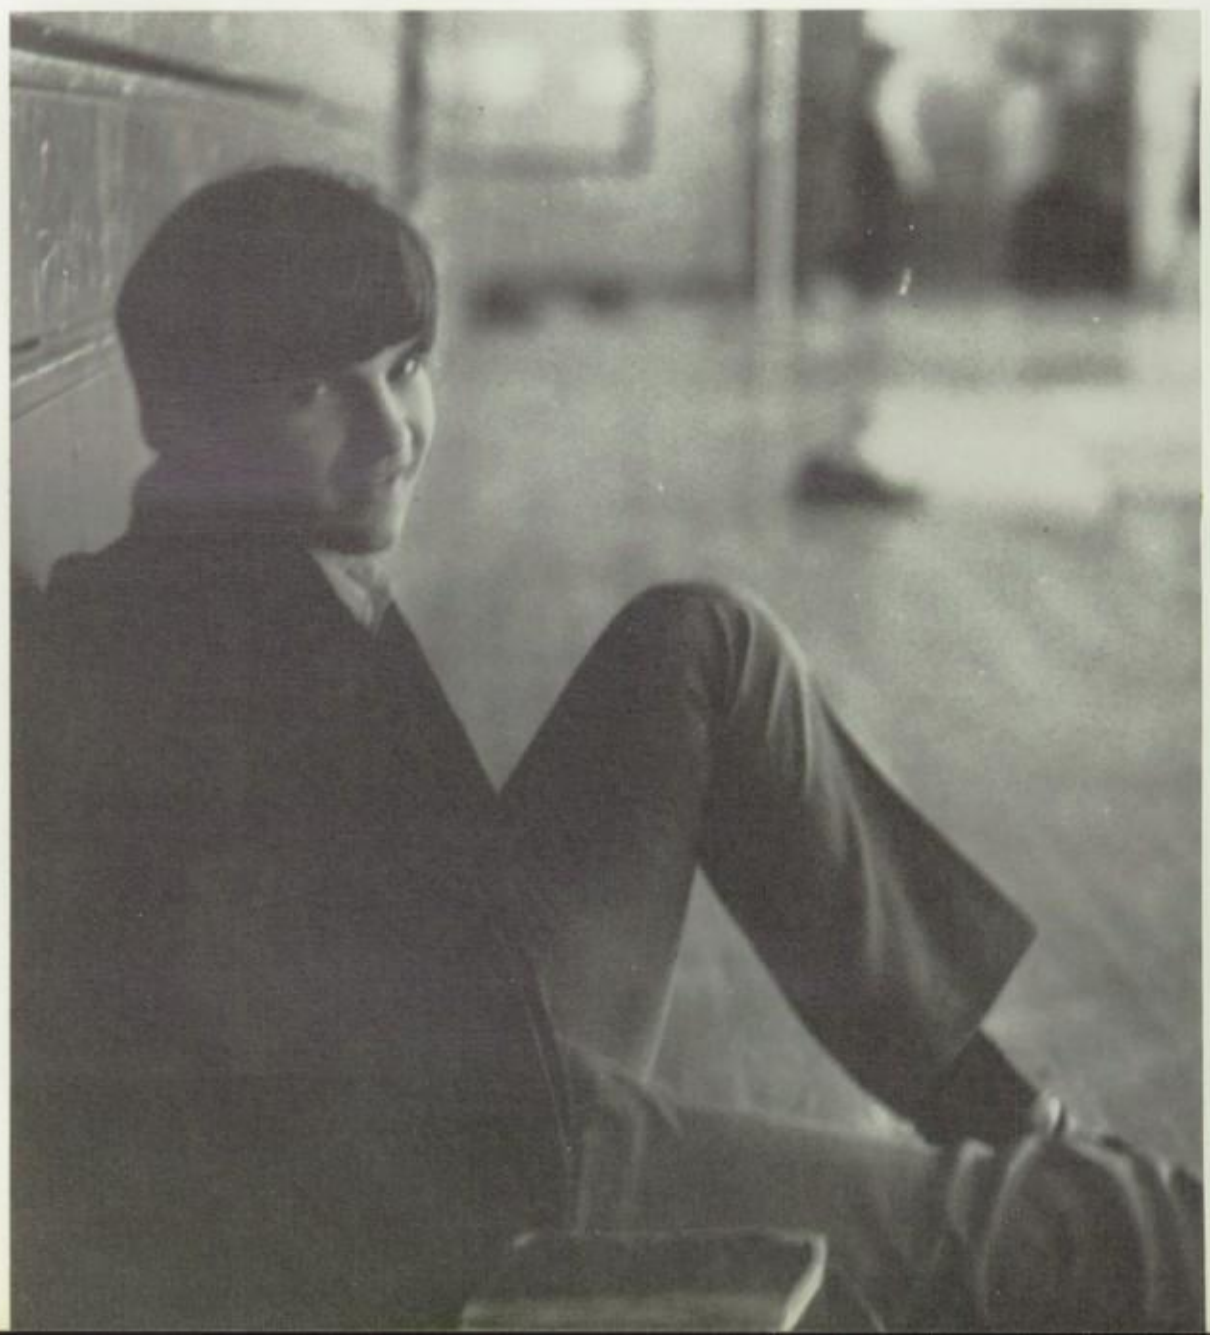
Advised by Mrs. Ruth Coleman, varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders supported football, basketball and wrestling during the past year. The nine-member varsity squad, which consisted of six seniors and three juniors, sported new skirts and sweaters and chanted through new megaphones this year. The JV squad was composed of six sophomores.

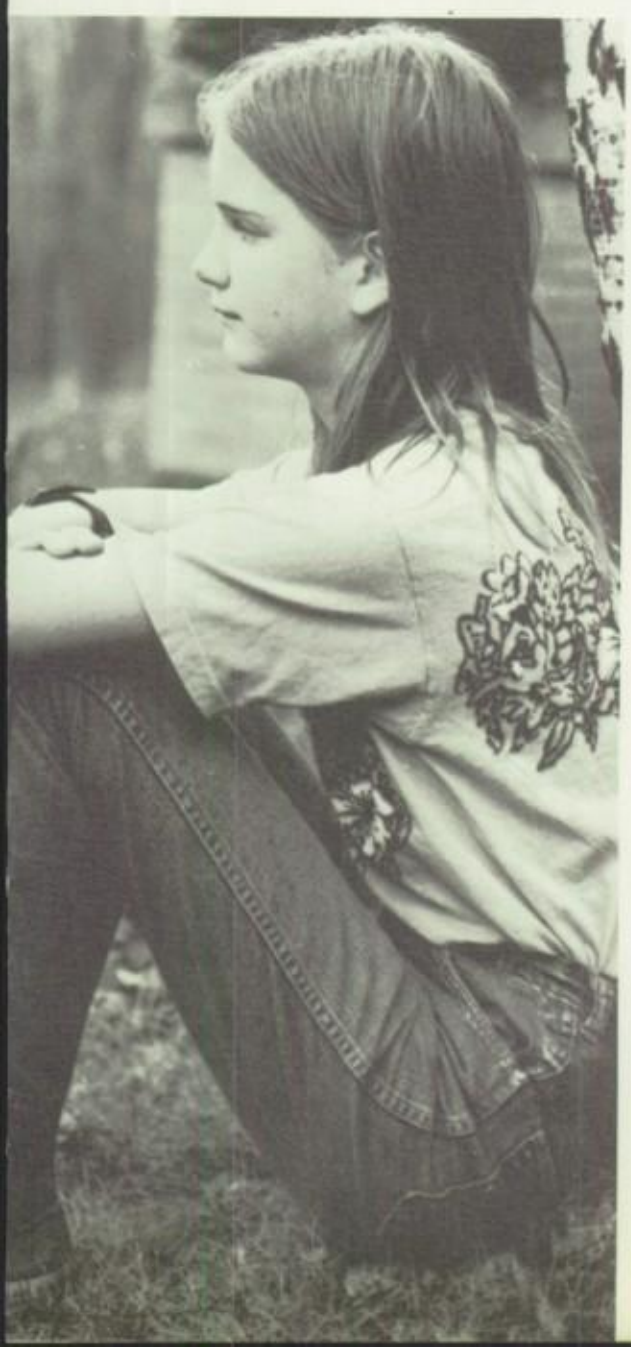
Throughout the year the cheerleaders conducted several pep rallies for each sport, plastered the halls with signs and were hostesses for the 16th annual cheerleading contest, which was held at Somerset. Denise Lichty headed the varsity squad, while Cindy Welker led the JV team.

Sammy Eagle and varsity cheerleaders line up on the bench for the opening kick-off.

Betsy Ross, Linda Mapes and Denise Lichty pause from cheerleading to watch a crucial third-down play.

SOMERSET AREA
JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL





it takes time
to learn to be a man.
we are taught
by ourselves and by others, alone and in groups.
school gives us more than facts and theories,
it instills in us
a sense of belonging.
we belong to these days
of torment and indecision, to these people
searching for a whiteness
in the blackness of today,
and to this time.
it is a time for us:
a time for answers,
and reasons,
and decisions;
a time for faith
in what is real and what is now.
a time for remembering our days in the JUNIOR HIGH.

Bill Bruckman smilingly reports to class, fully equipped and ready for anything.

Organizations Boost Morale, Offer Variety

By selling booster buttons and hats, the Pep Club under the supervision of Mrs. Jean Gerber bought new uniforms for the cheerleaders. The club sponsored a dance, Pep Week and buses to two football games. They also held a roller-skating party at Bedford.

The Ski Club, composed of over a hundred students, sponsored a dance and ski lessons at Hidden Valley. The club's adviser was Mrs. Bettyjane Steiner.

The Student Council added a new publication to the junior high this year called "SC Squawks." The council also sponsored the Care Drive and supported orphans in Korea. Purchasing water fountains for the school as well as providing hall monitors were further services provided by the Council. Mr. Thomas Brown advised the student council.

Boys' Octet members Larry Mostaller, Pat Stoltz, Joel Shaffer, Shane Lenhart, Mark Floyd, Grant Holsinger, Robert Mimna and Paul White practice together at a morning rehearsal.

Underclassmen

Awaiting their cue from Mr. Dice are Denise Walters, Jane Parson, Cindy Holt, Nellie Lowry, Ann Shellenberger, Marcia Brant, Lori Stufft and Gail Griffith, members of the Girls' Octet.

Cynthia Shafer practices a duet with Mr. Griffith during her music lesson.

Band members LeAnn Trimpey, Cindy Holt, Steve Brant, Pat Stoltz, Deborah Coddington and Jeffrey Walker find practicing together adds to a better sounding group.

During an eighth period rehearsal, Mr. Griffith directs his seventh grade band, explaining the correct tempo for a new song.

Boast Two Bands, Large Chorus And Orchestra

Melanie Miller, Marydean Barsis, Paula Cane and Brenda Smith check out Mr. Pepe's selection of music for their spring concert.

Highlighting the year's activities of the junior high band, orchestra and chorus were the annual Christmas and spring concerts.

The eighth and ninth grade band made public appearances in the Homecoming, Halloween and Christmas parades under the direction of Mr. Robert Griffith. Also under Mr. Griffith was the seventh grade band, comprised of sixty-six members.

Mr. Arthur Pepe conducted the fifty-five member orchestra, composed of eighth and ninth graders. Ann Shellenberger represented the junior high at District Orchestra, held in Altoona in January.

Eighth and ninth graders produced the largest chorus in several years. The chorus was under the direction of Mr. John Dice with the assistance of accompanist Harold Showman. The girls' and boys' octets, comprised of selected freshmen, made several appearances throughout the year.

Gym Team Paves Way To Sr. High Competitio

Intramural sports proved successful this year in improving the physical ability of the students in girls' and boys' gym classes. The competitive sports that were played included basketball, double and single table tennis, volleyball and softball. The students exerted energy in these sports while they also learned and practiced good sportsmanship in competition.

Somerset Area Junior High gymnastics team activities proved to be rewarding in the 1970-1971 season. The squad was composed of thirty-two boys, the majority consisting of underclassmen. They worked under the leadership of Coach Edward Joseph. The boys practiced to improve techniques in their individual fields of competition: free exercise, high bar, side horse, parallel bars, vaulting and still rings. Experience was gained in dual and district meets.

Cheerleaders Kindle Enthusiasm For Team Support

Majorettes (back) Cindy Shafer, Lori Stufft, Tracey Beal, Brenda Beal, Nancy Urban, (front) Jo Ellen Schrock, Connie Davis, Pam Fritz and Gail Brown highlighted band performances with their original routines.

Junior High cheerleaders roused school spirit and boosted the Little Eagles on to victory. Mrs. Jean Gerber advised the eight-member squad. Freshman Margie Martz served as captain, while Melody Trent was on call as the alternate member. This year the cheerleaders sported new uniforms, which were provided by the Junior High Pep Club. The girls proved their enthusiasm and team support by attending all home games and several away games.

Mr. Robert Griffith directed the majorettes, who led the band in various performances throughout the year. The girls presented their routines in the Halloween, Christmas and Homecoming parades and at home football games. Two groups of majorettes were active again this year. The seventh grade group was headed by Karen Otto. Tracey Beal led the group of eighth and ninth graders.

Hoopsters Tally Losing Record, Gain Experience

Coached by Mr. Clay and assistant Mr. Will Heinbaugh, the junior high basketball team played a total of eighteen games this year. The Little Eagles, facing a tough schedule, gained their first victory by defeating Shanksville 57-38. Although the junior birds refused to quit in their efforts to move into the winning column, this was the only victory of the season. J. P. O'Conner proved to be top scorer and rebounder for the 1971 season.

Separate seventh and eighth grade basketball teams practiced after school. Although no official games were played, the two teams played scrimmage games with area schools. Among these were Bedford, Windber, Shanksville and Rockwood.

During an after-school practice, eighth graders try to perfect shooting and blocking.

Coached by Mr. Joseph Maslak and his assistants Mr. Blaine Baker and Mr. Joseph Bower, the junior high football team faced an exciting season. The Little Eagles racked up a 3-4 record. Starting the season off with a disappointing loss of only two points to Richland Township, the team pulled off a 6-0 win over the Bedford Bisons in the second game of the year. The Little Eagles battled on to a 16-0 victory over Everett. Losing to Conemaugh Area and Cochran, the hard fighting team came back with a tremendous win against North Star, 30-6. The coaches felt it was a rewarding season.

New this year was the eighth grade football team, which turned in a 2-1 season slate. The two victories were over Bedford and Turkeyfoot, the loss to Windber.

Six Matmen End Season With Unbeaten Records

Junior High wrestlers opened their 1971 season with a struggle over Westmont 44-30 and closed the season with a 47-11 victory over Chestnut Ridge. Compiling a five win, two loss record, they placed third in the Junior High School Mountain Conference. The squad consisted of forty seventh, eighth and ninth graders under the coaching of Mr. John Baraniak and Mr. Richard Ross. Co-captain Allen Darr finished an undefeated season, as did fellow matmen Roger Barron, David Griffith, Allen Davis, David Fritz and James Mimna. On February 12 and 13, 1971, the squad competed in the Wrestling Tournament on their home mats against eight schools from three counties, to retain their third-place standing for the 1971 season.

Trackmen Take First In Junior High Invitational

Urged on by cheerleaders and classmates, Steve Mapes enters the third leg of the mile relay.

Coach David McCall considered the 1970 track season one of the best in Somerset Junior High's history. The Eagles, undefeated in four regular dual meets, won the annual Somerset Junior High Invitational.

Marks were tied or broken in eight of fourteen events. Among them were Steve Mapes in the 50-yard dash, Dick Baker in the 880-yard dash and Tom Singer, Tim Stouffer, Steve Mapes and Rodger Seifert in the one-mile relay. Several outstanding athletes finished the year unbeaten in their specialties. Brad Brant in the shot put, Alan Shockey in the high jump and John Schrock in the sprints turned in first-rate performances. John Schrock also dominated the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes.

Alan Shockey works for extra inches in the running broad jump.

In his record-breaking fifty-yard dash, Steve Mapes moves in on the finish line.

Guidance By Advisers Reinforces Student Effort

Mrs. Lilia Miller files records for the business staff, who are responsible for all financial matters concerning the Eaglet.

Heading yearbook activities in the junior high school, Mrs. Ruth Findley serves as our contact with the school's events and student body.

Aware that the Eaglet is a conglomeration of tradition and creativity and enjoyment and work and anxiety and frustration, Mrs. Phyllis Cindric, Eaglet advisor, smiles with understanding as she begins the day of the final yearbook deadline with her staff scurrying frantically about the halls.

Kneeling to get a workable angle, Mr. Jack Gradler sets up a vertical picture for the opening section of the '71 Eaglet.

Mr. Jack Wiley, Taylor Publishing Company representative, introduces new styles and materials for yearbook covers.

On one of the many busy picture days, Mrs. Martha Halverson, assistant to Mr. Gradler, checks the picture schedule and then her watch to see if they are on time.

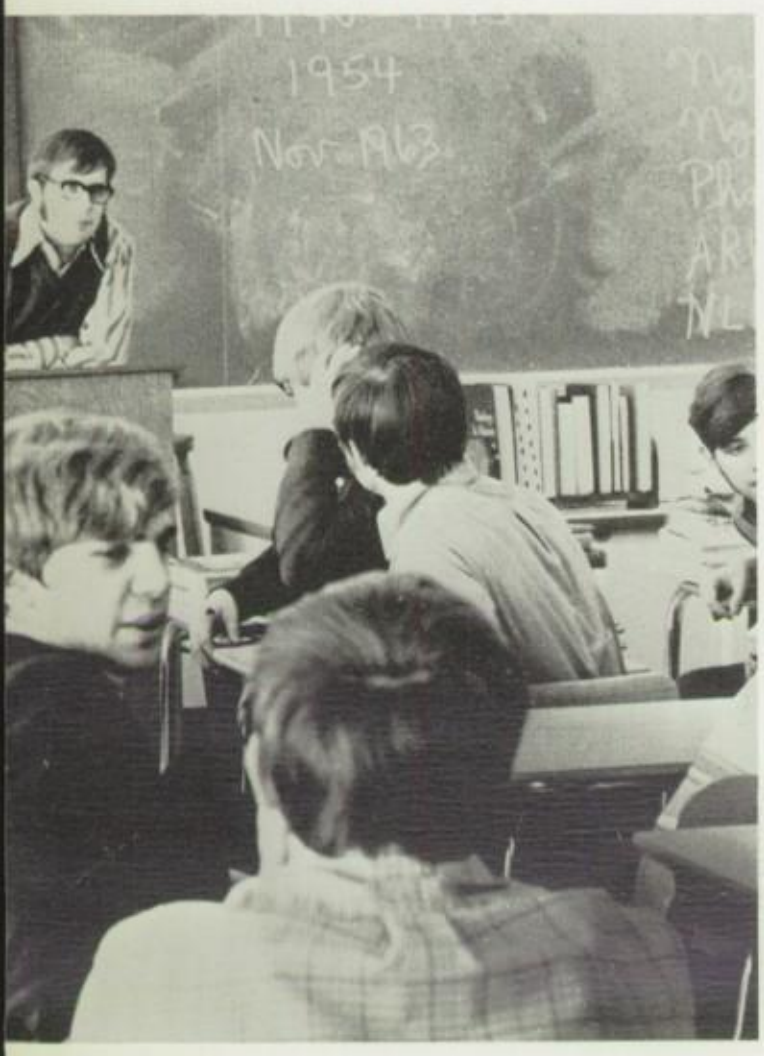
Dan Floyd, along with 800 other senior high kids, crowds onto Somerset's sidewalks at 3:26 every afternoon.

Time away from text books is often filled by meetings. At the usual Hi-Y meeting, more is discussed than Hi-Y "old business" and "new business."



A few minutes after dismissal, Paula Matthews and Bill Griffith huddle into an uptown phone booth.

After-school is divided between study and relaxation. Just home from school, Alexis Judy spends a few minutes with the newspaper.

So Debbie and I are of the sweetest girls in my afternoon classes. Remember all the fun in home ec. with the liers. Good-luck with life and give Fred a good home.

Debbie,
So a really Sweet girl who is in my homeroom, and who used to be in my classes.
Remember all the fun we've had together, like going roller skating. HA HA Good Luck with life and the boys. Don't ever forget me.

A.G.F.A.

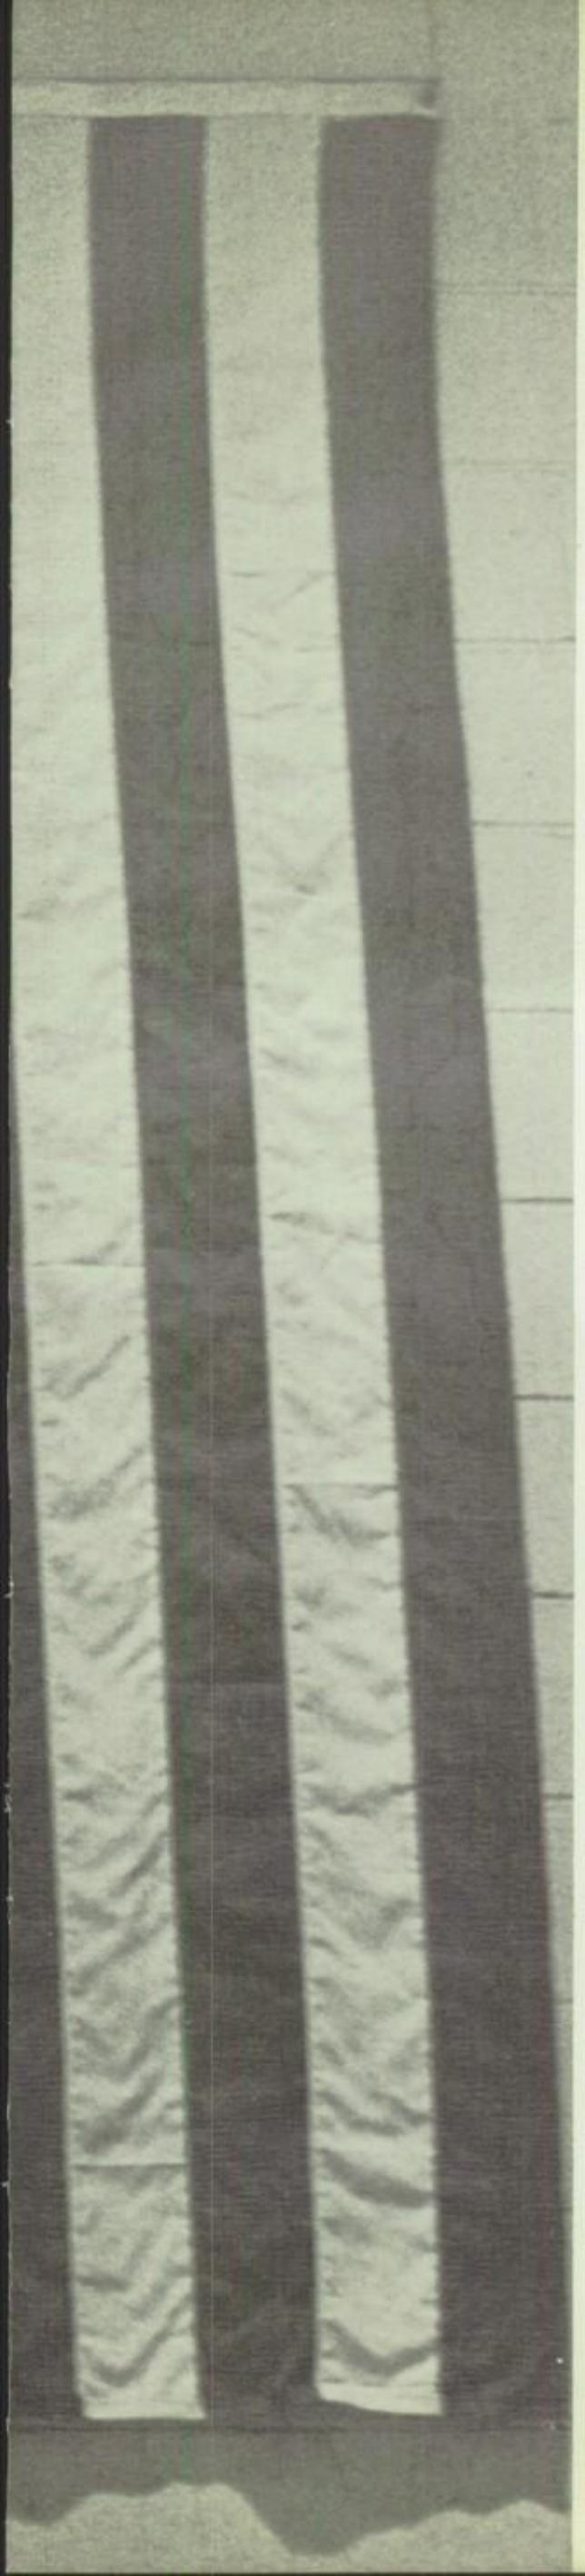
"74"



living is a series of episodes.
as the curtains are drawn on one setting,
another opens.
we gather knowledge
from both the actors and the acting.
curtains are folding slowly
now
across the stage.
so we attempt to salvage memories between the bindings of a book.
we believe in yesterday with its papers, pencils and podiums,
but
such props must be packed into an empty room.
that play is over.
today's stage has a different setting —
one of cold wars
with warm people;
flags of red, white, and blue instead of orange and black.
fellow actors
set about at writing their own plays, now.
we each see a new stage,
a bigger stage.
we are to build the scenery.
we are to select the actors.
we believe in tomorrow and its theater.
it is one of the stages of man.
now that curtain calls
on this platform
are over,
we join hands
and walk slowly from the stage . . .

with what we have learned here, we can cope with our new situation.
we can accept the challenge of our own theater.
it's a whole new time,
not a leftover today
or a make believe tomorrow.
it's a special time.
we play the leads.
the stage is Ours.
this is the time for Us!

I get to write on a clean page!!!!
Remember all the fun we had at ol' L.T.C. & the Jr. High. (How could you ever forget Noodlehead!)
Good Luck
God Bless

Debbie,
To one of the best Algebra Buddies someone could have. A real "sharpie" on the Oboe-too. Remember all our fun of the freshman year.

To Debbie,
For being funny all Rio jr. High. Remember all the crazy things. Good luck, and hope our stocks go up!! claudia clay

Debbie,
A very intelligent and scholarly scholar that doesn't have a dance at the algebra award. I have it all sewed up. Mine!! Good luck with the numbers and may the Blue Bird of Paradise get stuck in your ovod.. Don't worry. Some day Tom Anthony will return. Till then, keep your hands off Tom Baisted. Good luck with the boys from Roswell (AFA)

XOXOXO

Debbie,
To a girl who lost $7.00 on her civics stocks — better luck in the future.
